Moravian’s programs in NURSING leading to the Master of Science degree prepare today’s nurses for essential leadership roles.

Five PROGRAMS give graduate nurses the knowledge and skills to succeed as clinical nurse leaders, nurse administrators, nurse educators, or nurse practitioners.

INTERDISCIPLINARY courses foster exchange and learning with nursing, education, and business faculty.

FLEXIBLE scheduling lets students continue working while earning the degree.

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Adult-Gerontology Primary Care Nurse Practitioner program is a 43-credit program, that includes 21 credits of general and direct care courses that are shared with other graduate nursing programs. In addition, there are 22 credits of specialty adult-gerontology courses. The program has 650 clinical practicum hours, 30 laboratory practice hours, and 50 evidence-based project hours.

Students accepted into this program will enroll in a cohort of no more than six students per CRNP faculty clinical supervisor. This curriculum is set-up lockstep, so that students must take two courses per term with their cohort. Clinical practicum experiences, which commence in spring of the second year, will be arranged by CRNP faculty.
