Commencement Week

Baccalaureate Sermon

THE Moravian Church was completely filled with friends of the Moravian College and Theological Seminary and of the graduating classes for the baccalaureate sermon. Bishop Moench, President of the Board of Trustees, led in the liturgical service and read the Scripture lessons for the day. The choir, under the direction of Dean Rau, sang "The Omnipotence," by Schubert, the soprano solo parts being taken by Miss Carrie Belling. Mrs. John Leibert sang "Hear Ye, Israel," by Mendelssohn. Dr. Schultze in a few words pointed out the propriety of beginning commencement exercises with a baccalaureate sermon. Such a religious service was a confession that education owed very much to the Church; a testimony to the Gospel as the cornerstone of education and a consecration of education to God. Then he introduced the speaker, the eminent professor of Union Theological Seminary, Dr. Hugh Black.

Dr. Black took as his text, Jeremiah 18:18, and as his theme, "The Idolatry of the Traditional." He sketched the prophet's work as largely that of protest and revolt against the national inertia. He was more than merely a weeping prophet or the innocent origin of our word Jeremiah. The world hates originality of that kind that requires a new standpoint and alters custom. Hence the nation resented his work. They appealed to the three classes that had authority, priests, wise men and prophets. But they did not support the new ideas of Jeremiah. It is always easier to go with the crowd and appeal to the big names. This is the common danger of all professionalism.

The experts in any line indeed have a right to their opinion and should be heard with respect within their own sphere. We certainly owe much to these old Jews. They preserved for us the sacred books. But experts can also do harm. The devil of pedantry tempts them. The close corporation idea in religion is wrong. The spirit of God cannot be confined to any party. We may wish to see the world saved, but only by the Presbyterians, by the Moravians, etc.

History proves the falsity of the idolatry of tradition. Light often comes from unexpected sources. A prophet is called from the herd or from the foot of the throne. Every revelation takes the world by surprise. It is a fact, that in the hands of the priests the law was made of none effect. Theological hatred has disgraced the pages of history. The religious leaders crucified the Christ. The prophet is always in the minority, sometimes in a minority of one. Decadence is the sure result of not looking for something new.

The new is always simple, and its very simplicity often is used against it. The new is of the spirit—a genius for God, as that of Zinzendorf. Now it is possible to void God's law by traditionalism, by shutting one's eyes to the new light and the new duties in business, in society, in civil affairs, and in international affairs. The old phrase, "entangling alliances," is used to bolster up the claim that our nation should not take a part in the great affairs of the world today. So many talk as if God was up to the time of the New Testament or to the Reformation (or how far do the Moravians go), but not as if God is and will be. If God is not, then He never was. He has work for this generation. But tradition holds back. Goethe said poets drive poetry out of the world. Prophets kill prophecy. Religious people kill religion.

We should be ready to follow the vision of the new, even at the sacrifice of our opinions. We should not cast stones at the prophets of the new, nor smite them with the tongue. We should be true sons of the prophet. It is just as big a thing to be a true follower as a true leader. A young man's finest dream is to find a leader whom he can follow, as the Scotch followed the Stuarts, tawdry leaders though they were.

Christ chose His disciples not because they were poor, but because they were free from the bondage of tradition and had receptive souls. So should we be. Revelation despises tradition. We should see God in human life, be open-hearted and open-minded.

If we apply this to the world situation today we may well ask, "Watchman, what of the night?" Darkness there is. Some are pessimistic. Those who realize the horror of the European cataclysm say that civilization, religion, man and God have failed. But despair not. God is in his world. Look for the new vision. The King is coming. But America should see to her leadership in this matter. The Church must make sure that some good will come from this tragedy, as Lincoln said in his speech of dedication, "that these men shall not have died in vain." Believe that it is possible in God's name and in His strength. Pray and work for new things to happen—even in our religious life. Let us not devise devices against the prophets of the new, lest we be against Christ.

Commencement Exercises

RAIN interfered with the size of the audience at the commencement exercises in the Helen Stadiger Borhek Memorial Chapel, June 7, but it could not dampen the enthusiasm of the loyal friends and alumni who came in spite of the rain. The exercises began at ten o'clock. President Schultze was assisted by Bishop Mueller, of Watertown, Wis.; Principal F. E.

Grunert, of Nazareth, and the Rev. W. H. Vogler, of Nazareth. The speaker for the day was Dr. Frank K. Sanders, formerly of Yale, now director of the Board of Missionary Preparation, which is a board of experts to study scientifically the problems involved in the mission cause and represents all the foreign missionary interest in North America.

Dr. Sanders took for his topic: "Idealism and Efficiency." "Very many people seem to think they are essentially opposed to each other, and choose efficiency as their ideal. The world admires the man that can get things done, as Bethlehem's efficiency has recently given it a worldwide reputation almost equal to that of its namesake, but for an entirely different reason. Yet efficiency may actually become culpable, and militate against the highest form of patriotism.

"Efficiency is desirable only when balanced by idealism. That gives it a worth and a permanence and a real dignity. This may be illustrated by the drives of Hindenburg through the Masurian Lakes—all done in accordance with carefully laid plans. It not only makes efficiency more efficient; it also ennobles it, as in the case of Nehemiah against his crafty enemies, an outraged Jesus against the defilers of the temple, or a Hus who could go to his death with a hymn on his lips. Such a man will not flatter nor bluster nor rage, yet carries the world with him.

"If idealism does not control efficiency, chaos and anarchy result. And idealism in turn is based on four foundations. First, education, in the sense of learning. This is necessary for the common man to enable him to live his life successfully—hence the importance of our public school system. Still more necessary is education for the leaders, as can be illustrated in the history of nations, such as China, Latin-America, not to say anything of Europe and America. Education destroys cynicism and narrowness and hence helps efficiency. Second, idealism calls for real cultural education. Our early universities fostered this in particular. Their motto was 'For God and the Church.' Their graduates were men whose heads were among the stars but whose feet walked on the earth. Washington is a good example. Such culture must be soundly ethical.

"Third, idealism must have a wide program. A tub was large enough for Diogenes, the world too small for Alexander. We know the whole world today as never before. World problems stare us in the face, in civil, political and religious matters. Men must take a wide outlook, as Hill, the empire-builder. To set one's self a large program does not mean that one will not meet difficulties, but it will bring real satisfaction. For the best part of life is the future. Hope means more than gratification. When the Psalmist said, 'To the hills I lift mine eye,' he looked at a mountain range the name of which means tomorrow.

"Fourth, idealism must link itself with eternal forces. It requires orientation with the elemental forces, moral and spiritual. Three sorts of studies will bring this about, Spartanics, to develop the strength of man; Humanics, to develop sympathy, and Vitalics, to increase the driving power."

In conclusion the speaker gave a fine description of true Americanism and paid a glowing tribute to President Wilson.

Dr. Schultze, in addressing the graduates, emphasized the ideas of the speaker and pointed out the three roots for true success in life, as arising partly from education, partly from one's own individual effort and partly from divine inspiration.

List of Graduates and Prizes

The graduates of the Seminary were Mark W. Ruprecht, of Columbus, Ohio, and Richard E. Shields, of Hope, Indiana.

The degree A.B. was given to the following:

LeRoy S. Allam, of South Bethlehem; Paul J. Allen, of Tobago, British West Indies; Edgar L. Clewell, of Uhrichsville, Ohio; Reinhold Henkelmann, of Alberta, Canada; Henry A. Kuehl, of Grand Rapids, Wis.; W. Herbert Spaugh, of Winston-Salem, N. C.; Christian O. Weber, of Utica, N. Y., and Samuel Wedman, of Strathcona, Canada.

The degree of B.S. was conferred upon Edward R. McCuiston, of Winston-Salem, N. C., and Wilfred E. Vogler, of Nazareth, Pa.

The John David Bishop prize of $50 was given to Richard E. Shields; the Cora Doster Moses prize in Homiletics to Mark W. Ruprecht; the $10 prize in Science to Paul Bilheimer, of Bethlehem, and the $15 prize in Greek to Samuel Wedman.

The Reception

A large company of friends of the Moravian College and Theological Seminary gathered in the Central Sunday School building June 6, at 8 p.m., for one of the most successful receptions to the graduates that has ever been held. The reception was given by the Ladies' Sewing Circle of the Bethlehem Moravian congregation—an organization which the authorities of the college delight to honor for the great assistance they have given in the course of many years. They provided elegant refreshments and were assisted in serving them by a number of young ladies not members of the Circle. The occasion will be remembered as a very pleasant one by college men and friends alike. Mrs. E. A. Rau and Mrs. L. F. Leibfried poured.

MAY

On May 29, the senior classes of Seminary and College banqueted sumptuously at the "Park House," Hellertown, Pa. Dinner was served in seven courses, mirth aiding digestion. The toasts were short and to the point—as all such things should be, each speaker urging upon his fellows loyalty to Moravian, sincerity of purpose. The joyous occasion came to an end with "College Ties," various yells, and a hearty hand-shake.

The Glee Club concert rendered last month at Easton was well attended. Throughout the year the members have been well supported by their audiences, with but few exceptions.

On the evening of May 26, Mr. Reinhold Henkelmann, '16, addressed the Laurel Street Christian Endeavor Society on the subject of "Missions—Does it Pay?"

The Commencement week was as follows:

Sunday Morning. Baccalaureate Sermon, preached by Doctor Hugh Black, of Union Theological Seminary, New York.

Tuesday Afternoon. Reception to the graduates, given by one of the societies of the Church.

Wednesday, 11.30 A.M. Alumni Meeting.

Wednesday, 12.30 P.M. Alumni Luncheon.

Wednesday Morning. Commencement Address by the Rev. Frank K. Sanders, director of the Missions movement, New York. The subject of the address was "Efficiency and Idealism." The following men received degrees: R. E. Shields, B.D.; L. S. Allam, A.B.; P. J. Allen, A.B.; E. L. Clewell, A.B.; R. Henkelmann, A.B.; H. A. Kuehl, A.B.; E. R. McCuiston, S.B.; W. H. Spaugh, A.B.; W. E. Vogler, S.B.; C. O. Weber, A.B.; S. Wedman, A.B.

M. Ruprecht received a certificate of work completed in the Seminary.

Mr. R. E. Shields will take up work in St. Domingo City some time during the summer.

Mr. L. S. Allam will teach at the Moravian Parochial School next year; he succeeds Mr. H. V. Lopp, '14.

Mr. P. J. Allen has secured a position as teacher at Nazareth Hall Military Academy.

Mr. E. L. Clewell intends to take up settlement work among the Italians of Detroit, Mich. Mr. E. R. McCuiston will do similar work in Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. W. E. Vogler, after attending various summer conferences, will assume the position of Industrial Secretary for the City of New York. He is in the employ of the Y. M. C. A.

V. Vancura, Sem., '15, and Miss Martha Fendrych will be united in marriage, on June 27, in the First Bohemian "John Hus" Church in New York City. THE COMENIAN extends hearty congratulations.

The officers of the Musical Association for 1916-17 were elected as follows: President, R. Henkelmann, Sem., '18; Leader, W. H. Spaugh, Sem., '18; Manager, C. O. Weber, Sem., '18; Secretary, R. W. Everroad, '18; Treasurer, R. W. Strohmeier, '17; Vice-President, E. S. Hagen, '17.

During the present scholastic year the activity of the Musical Association has been revealed. Concerts were given at various places in the Bethlehems and neighboring cities, all of which met with great success and applause.

Despite the fact that some of the best voices will be missed next fall, prospects look good, and we hope to have a Glee Club equal to the one of this year.

The second annual concert in Bethlehem was given in the Laurel Street Chapel, May 5, before an appreciative audience.

When our college days are over
 And our ways shall part,
 Still by thee we'll be united
 Still be one in heart.

Y. M. C. A.

When thoughts of the last hours in the old Alma Mater come over our spirits and work looms high on the desks we find that the Y. M. C. A. has been holding its own during the last month, just as the other organizations in the College.

May 4. Topic: "The Ethics of Jesus" was discussed and a short song service was held. Mr. Ruprecht was leader for the occasion. A fair number attended this meeting and all who did certainly enjoyed being present.

May 11. We had the privilege of having Rev. Flinn speak to us. As usual, Rev. Flinn was a great favorite and all expressed their appreciation for his address. Mr. Everroad was leader and Mr. Fulmer rendered a solo for the service.

May 18. This meeting consisted of a report of the Presidents' Conference from Mr. S. Wedman.

May 25. Mr. Spaugh led the service, the topic being, "Vacation Problems." A short organ recital before the meeting proved very refreshing.

During the month a quartet accompanied Dr. Paul de Schweinitz to the St. Luke's Hospital for service. The singers were Messrs. Henkelmann, Richter, Kemper and Fulmer.

We can also report that the Eagelsmere budget is being raised and we will at all events have a larger delegation to represent us at that conference than last year. The delegates have not as yet been elected.

In conclusion let us say that the Y. M. C. A. work, although it seemed at times discouraging, has nevertheless kept up and we as an old staff and cabinet wish all possible success to the new officers and God's blessing in the coming year.

Exchanges

In the May issue of Our College Times we find two articles reviewing various points in "Silas Marner." They are both well written and show a thorough study of the subject, but in order to give to the literary department a little more variety, one of them might have been omitted, and an article on some other subject substituted. The essay "What is Arbor Day" is very good, giving a short account of the origin of this custom, and showing the great value of the universal observance of that day. "The Crystallized Life" presents thoughts well worth considering, and draws an admirable comparison between human life and drops of water. In childhood, we are much like a liquid mass of water, changing under the slightest influence, reflecting the goodness showered on us by loved ones, but unstable and wavering. As the child grows older, he becomes similar to a drop of water through which the light of love and affection may shine and produce a rainbow of the richest colors of character. When manhood approaches, the drop crystallizes and becomes fixed in habit and manner of life, fastened perhaps to some tree in the form of an ice crystal upon which the varied experiences of the years may fall and be reflected in a well-lived and honorable life.

The Exchange column, composed in poetry, is a delightful variety and adds much to the attractiveness of this department.

Following is a list of all the exchanges received during our administration: The Academy Record, The Albright Bulletin, The Black and Red, The Central Catholic High School Echo, College Chips, College News, The D. M. L. C. Messenger, The Dial, Fulneck School Magazine (Fulneck, England), The Hall Boy, The Ivy, The Kenyon Collegian, The Literary Novice, The Linden Hall Echo, Ye Manor Chronicle, The Mirror, Ogontz Mosaic, The Narrator, The Newberry Stylus, Old Penn, The Perkiomenite, The Steel and Garnet, The Spectator, The Susquehanna, The Ursinus Weekly, The Witmarsum.

Knowing Things

These are days when one sees a certain unanswerable and often very ludicrous anomaly. Commencement is considered by some as the time-marker of the very pinnacle of wisdom and understanding; it is termed a Commencement and is imagined an Ending.

What is it to be wise?

'Tis but to know how little can be known;
To see all others' faults, and feel your own.

So wrote Pope in his "Essay on Man." The greatest wisdom is a confession of ignorance.

And how often does it not seem ridiculous. Behold a growing mind, grasping at every floating object in the river of knowledge, chancing to hold a straw and calling it a raft; learning to see things and not yet ready to distinguish between the valuable and the worthless, the real and the unreal.

But this is not a fault restricted to youth, it is a curse upon the most of mankind. In youth it can often be excused, in age it is to be despised or pitied. In the grown man it is the sign of littleness of concept and lack of capacity.

What a pleasure it is to meet and converse with a man who recognizes other truths in the world except those of which he is assured,—who respects the opinions of others. An open, receptive and unharnessed mind makes the master-man.

In matters of reason, only the blind cannot see the lesson of time. From the beginning of knowledge one generation after the other has overturned in monotonous regularity the unalterable wisdom of the fathers, and propagated words of learning just as vulnerable. True wisdom is an element of eternity which wise men strive toward and only fools think to have attained.

Commencement is in reality, as the word implies, only a beginning. And the nearer to wisdom, the more sharp and pronounced must the recognition be that it is only a beginning,—that all life is but a beginning.

M. W. R.

Another scholastical year has come to a close and the students, ere this goes to print, will be scattered throughout the land, faithful in their respective vocations. There are some among them who, perhaps, will think of neither text-book nor college until the time of returning approaches; others will, no doubt, continue to study to obtain a broader understanding, to strengthen their intellectual ability, or even to prepare themselves for greater usefulness toward their Alma Mater.

The last mentioned is perhaps the one least thought of. Too often students look to the college they attend with the hope of receiving all that possibly can be procured from it. This is very well, but they must go farther. They care little about what they might do toward increasing the standard or value of their institution; nor is it possible to convince some that it is their duty as well as their privilege to raise such a means of educational development to a higher level. It is because of this fact that we must give time for serious consideration.

Since this article will come into the hands of the Faculty, Students, and Alumni during the months of vacation, when some will be endeavoring to forget college, if they have not already done so, some will undoubtedly remark that the time for such thoughts is in the fall at the opening of the new term. This is a mistake. We must begin now. But where?

Our Faculty, we can gratefully say, is composed, for the greater part, of intellectually strong men, with a power to impart knowledge to others. The courses are thorough and up to the standard of those of similar institutions. As for the dormitories, we can say that in all our visits to other colleges, whether in connection with athletics or in attending conferences, no rooms, equal in neatness, cleanliness, or size, have been met with. What then is necessary?

A strong Faculty, thorough courses, and splendid dormitories are not sufficient; before a college exists there must be students; not only a few in a class, but a number sufficiently large to make things interesting. This is where we have come short. There is no reason whatever why such a college as ours should contain unoccupied rooms. Why not utilize such accommodations to the greatest advantage. There are scores of young men looking for just such an institution, and therefore we say that each member of the Faculty, Student-body, and Alumni make it his individual duty to boost M. C., to advertise his college in order that next fall the Student-body might be larger, and that through an increase in the number of students the activities of the college might be carried on more efficiently. Let yourself be heard for the glory of M. C.

H. A. K.

“No man struggles perpetually and victoriously against his own character; and one of the first principles of success in life is so to regulate our career as rather to turn our physical constitution and natural inclinations to good account than to endeavor to counteract the one or oppose the other.”—Bulwer.

The Best Flavored Gum on the Market

A poetic feeling takes hold of us as we prepare to leave the dear old walls of M. C.

Commencement time is over
 And never to be again
 For those good old Seniors,
 Their number just comes ten.
 The Freshmen they are Sophs,
 They sure do look it too;
 With salmon pink and purple sox,
 And patent leather shoe.
 The Sophs aspire to Juniors,
 The title appeals to each;
 They're very hard to handle,
 But easier for Bill to teach.
 The Juniors they're now Seniors,
 Well I should smile;
 And when they begin to laugh,
 You can hear 'em just a mile.

Andy applied at the Steel Works for a job.
 "You're too young," said the foreman.
 Two weeks later Andy returned.
 "I told you that I wanted an older man," said the foreman.

Andy: "That's why I returned."

Dink: "When will water stop running down hill?"

Smyzer: "I know, I read it in the paper."

Dink: "So!"

Smyzer: "Sure, when it reaches the bottom."

Otto (five years out of college): "My butler left me without any warning."

Walt (being in the same condition): "So! Mine left me without any spoons."

Pop: "How do you sell your limberger cheese?"

Clerk: "Oh, I don't know, sir; I guess we just have to get used to it."

Bung H.: "What do they call a man who goes up in airships?"

Sherlock: "An aviator, of course."

Bung H.: "And what do they call the place where they keep the airships?"

Sherlock: "An aviary, you nut."

Young thing: "Then you, too, have felt the subtle touch of his genius."

Old Party: "Oh, yes—and also the subtle genius of his touch."

RESEARCH WORK.

Goosie and Hiram were attending the dog show in South Bethlehem when they suddenly spied a Skye terrier, which had so much hair that it looked more like a woolen rug than a dog.

"Which end is his head, Hiram?" asked Goosie.

"Don't know," was the reply.

"But I'll stick a pin in him and you look which end barks."

"Scrap" Everroad (as new floorwalker of the Hope Necktie Emporium, to man who seemed undecided which way to go): "Are you looking for something?"

Party addressed: "No, sir; I've lost my wife."

"Hey there, fellows, are you with me or against me?"

All the degrees have been conferred. Fishel, Pfohl, Richter, Lopp and Dech have received post grad. degrees from Prof. Mealey's School of ———, at the Auditorium in Allentown. The Lehigh Valley Traction Company wishes to extend their appreciation to the above mentioned for their patronage during the past winter and this spring.

Light Employment for Vacation

Athletics

The second game with Keystone, on the 13th, was a disappointment. Moravian started with a rush, scoring five runs on as many hits in the first inning. Mueller was hit hard in the second and from then on the score soared to 19-8 in the final. Landis relieved Mueller in the fourth and allowed but two hits in five innings. Landis and Kuntzleman led the batting, each having a triple with men on bases.

With one game yet to play—with the Alumni*—Moravian closes the most unfortunate season in her history. Apparently the team was composed of good, average material, but the fates always turned in the crises and shone on the opponents and Moravian was always "left in the cold."

The first game with Drexel was played at Bethlehem on May 6. It was a bad defeat, 4-19. Errors were responsible for the large score, as both teams hit equally hard. Mueller led the batting for Moravian, with three hits, while Smith featured in pitching for Drexel, having eight strike-outs to his credit. Line-up:

Two-base hits: Dissinger, Cosden, Kuehl. Three-base hits: Landis, Kuntzleman. Base on balls: off Mueller, 1. Left on bases: Moravian, 7; Kutztown, 6. Struck out: by Mueller, 2; Landis, 2; Evans, 8. Hits: off Mueller, 13 in 3 2-3 innings; off Landis, 2 in 4 1-3 innings. Double play: Mueller to Landis. Hit by pitcher: Huntzinger, Clewell. Wild pitch: Landis.

Again Drexel laid us low on the 19th, on their own field, 17-5. The score was tie in the fifth inning when the "merry-go-round" began. Mueller was relieved by Landis and the onslaught stopped temporarily; but four more runs were batted in in the ninth. McCuiston played well in the field for Moravian. De Maris, of basketball fame, made four clean hits for Drexel. Line-up:

The closest game of the season was made with the Lafayette Scrubs on their field on May 24. Moravian managed to score one run despite the tremendous pitching of Mummert, while Lafayette was held to seven tallies. Mummert pitched a record game, allowing but one hit, and striking out 22 men. The Blue and Grey boys were helpless before the big southpaw's speed. Landis played a sensational game on first base, saving several errors on bad throws by his long reach. Line-up:

Benson Landis, '18, has been elected baseball captain for the season of 1916-17.

Tennis

The tennis season which has just come to a close is one to which we may well point with pride. Thirteen games were played with outside teams, of which Moravian won eight, lost four and played one draw. The success of our "racquet wielders" was due primarily to the excellent support which they received from the entire student body. This is the spirit that wins the victory. Manager Hoffman deserves great credit for the successful season. The scores of the various games follow:
