

Student Government Role Stressed At USG Confab

by Alan Lippman

"To promote the goals of the college, to stimulate the student academically, culturally, intellectually, socially, and spiritually, and to act as a liaison between the administration, faculty, and the student body," is the role of a student government, according to Peter L. French, president of United Student Government.

Student government, said French, at a meeting of USG held Tuesday evening, is a "continuing responsibility" and it is the duty of the individual student to carry out his responsibility of self-government toward his fellow students. To this end, he urged a self-evaluation of student groups and a stressing of "co-curricular" activities rather than social activities on this campus.

Other major business matters covered during the 40-minute meeting concerned the freshman orientation program and the re-mittance of previously excluded groups.

Frosh Orientation A Success

Fred Lipari, vice president of USG, stated that the first year of the newly established freshman orientation was a "limited success," and that with further progress, the idea "could work into something profitable" for all.

Lipari added that the programs now being carried out for freshmen will be continued until the class has been "fully informed as to what it should know."

The Veterans Association, the Belunkers, and Epsilon Beta Alpha were readmitted to full membership standing in student government. They had previously been disqualified due to lack of attendance.

French Suggests Projects

In relation to the student government's position on campus, French noted that he had several projects in mind which could culturally and academically benefit the college. First, he said, USG might inaugurate a "post lecture series," in which faculty members could be called upon to deliver

Convocations Will Feature Religious View

A series of Thursday morning convocations will feature a number of prominent speakers. These special programs will be of interest to students.

Students must attend 12 out of 14 scheduled weekly convocations. If this requirement is not met, all convocations during the following semester must be attended.

A list of programs and dates of presentation appears elsewhere in this issue. Further details will be forthcoming regarding tentative programs being planned by the Student Faculty Convocation Committee.

Cafeteria Setup Appraised By Neiswender

Lear Neiswender, director of the college cafeteria, has reported that some changes will be made in the present men's dining room procedure. It is believed that a different approach will be used in the future in the handling of dining tickets. At the present time too many people are not presenting their tickets; this causes a delay while their names are taken.

The fact that the line moves slowly in the morning is due to the great number of students entering the dining hall at once, and to the fact that the kitchen crew is trying to prepare a breakfast that comprises something more than a bun and a cup of coffee.

Neiswender feels that by extending the breakfast period to 8:30 a.m., students who have second period classes may sleep later in the morning without missing a meal.

The main objective of this year's dining plan, according to Neiswender is to give the students a well balanced diet of fruit twice a day, a salad or some other form of greens, milk, starch, and meat.

Moravian College's campus reorganization program is nearing completion, according to assistant Director of Development John Woltjen.

The main project still to be completed is the construction of the new men's dormitory on North Campus. According to Woltjen, the entire dormitory will be completed "sometime in November." There is a possibility, he added, of completion of a single wing for the freshman by the end of October.

The conversion of the Arts building into a Library Annex has been partially completed. Moravian's large collection of religious literature will be obtained in the Annex. The Annex is open as a reading room.

The first floor of Main Hall, South Campus, is now in a process of renovation. The president of the college will have an office on this floor. A conference room

Develop Faith To Face Life, Welsh Urges

Strength of mind is "an army superior to any force that life can hurl against you," stated Rev. A. Augustus Welsh, pastor of Christ Church in Bethlehem, at yesterday's opening student convocation of the semester.

Rev. Welsh addressed an audience of approximately 650 in Johnston Hall on the subject "Strength of Mind" and urged students to develop faith and courage to face the forces which "life sets against you."

Strength of Mind

"Strength of mind is an allied coalescence of all human virtues forged to preserve a dignity of soul against all forces of life." This form of self dignity is attained "through struggle and sacrifice," and will "overcome all forces set against you," said Rev. Welsh.

You can "never have peace of mind until you have strength of mind," which consists of two entities. First, one should "develop faith and courage through religion," and second, "one must build strength of wisdom" so as not to become intellectually stagnant.

These values, Rev. Welsh explained, are attained "through struggle and sacrifice. Pain and struggle bring strength of mind; out of this results a peace of mind."

Rev. Welsh received his Bachelor of Divinity degree from the Theological Seminary at Lancaster and his honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from Ursinus College.

Varying Opinions Stated On Freshmen Orientation

An evaluation of the new freshman orientation program was the subject of a meeting held on Tuesday, Sept. 22 at 7 p.m. in room 301, south campus. Present were the sophomores who have been assisting in the program, Halcyon Sartwell, Dean of Women and Harvey T. D. Gillespie, Dean of Men.

New Handbook Still Available

Due to a number of innovations and rules changes put into effect this year, a new edition of the student handbook has been published and is available to all students free of charge. Students still desiring a copy are requested to come to the Comenian office, Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 29.

Formerly called the "Freshman Handbook," the new "Student Handbook" includes a history of the college, locations of all offices and classrooms, and general information regarding administrative procedures.

Also included in the handbook is a complete activities calendar, college cheers and songs, and a copy of the student body constitution.

Edited by David Schattscheider, the pamphlet was published by the Board of Publications under the supervision of United Student Government.

PLACEMENT

There will be a meeting of the senior class for placement orientation on Tuesday, Sept. 29, at 11:30 a.m. in rooms 9 and 10, Johnston Hall.

The new type of orientation was initiated this year after the United Student Government (U.S.G.) voted last March to put an end to the traditional hazing program.

This year's program calls for a series of orientation meetings to be held during the Tuesday meeting period for the rest of the semester. At these meetings, the freshmen will be introduced to various phases of school life and activity by representatives of the faculty, administration and upper classes.

Requirements

The freshmen are required to wear their dinks and name buttons until the Homecoming football game, Oct. 31. If however, the members of the freshmen class defeat the sophomore class at an All-Sports day to take place some time in advance of the game, they need no longer wear the dinks and buttons.

Participation in this year's pajama parade during Homecoming weekend will no longer be mandatory for the male freshmen.

Any freshman failing to comply with the rules will be reported to the student Regulations Committee for disciplinary action.

Several suggestions were made by the students present as to improvements that could be made in planning next year's program. It was suggested that a buffet supper for parents and new students be held on the first night of Freshmen Orientation week. A special time for the campus tours was urged, so that they would not occur during the time when some students were taking tests.

Another suggestion was that the new students report first of all to the business office in Colonial Hall,

Rader States New Class Absence Policy

A new policy regarding class absences has been put into effect this semester, according to Marilyn A. Rader, Dean of Instruction. Whereas previously, the dean's office notified the student by letter when he had reached his limit of unexcused absences, this courtesy can no longer be extended, due to the increased student body.

The dean's office will continue to record absences as they are reported by the faculty but it will be the responsibility of the student to keep a record of his absences so that he may know how many he has accumulated.

Each student is permitted a number of absences each semester equivalent to the number of classroom credit hour in the course.

Missing . . .

The changes around the campi this year are very apparent. Perhaps most apparent is the uncompleted reorganization plan which has caused a small amount of chaos.

However there is also something missing this year. No longer is the cry of "Buttons, Frosh" heard. No longer do we see completely bored first year male students tramping around the quadrangle to the confusing orders of confused upperclassmen. No longer do we see the first year women students carrying books in buckets and wearing clashing clothes combinations.

Of course, the freshmen are here. But this year's entering class is the subject of a new experiment. It is the first to enjoy a very worthwhile new tradition at Moravian. It is benefiting from a planned orientation program, and not being victimized by a loosely organized hazing program which usually was administered by those who had not yet learned that there is a difference between high school and college.

This resulted in the possible positive side of hazing being far surpassed by the negative aspects. Normally students are accusing college faculty and administrative officials of conservatism and of being unwilling to change for progress. Now it appears that there are certain of the "old guard" upperclassmen who feel that this program is not as good as the one it replaced.

The general feeling seems to be that there will be no unity of the class of 1963 and that this class will have no respect for upperclassmen.

The new program offers answers to these objections and to many others that may be offered. Class unity can be aroused through making its members aware of the traditions of the school and the program of the school and making them proud to be a part of the school. Certainly this approach is a much better one than that of unifying the class either in their "hate" of sophomores or their common shame at the childishness of upperclassmen.

It is likewise safe to say again that only those deserving of respect will gain it. Certainly one will have more respect for an upperclassman who actively contributes to making the orientation program a success than one will have for the "superior" who can yell the loudest.

To the freshmen it can be said that you should be proud that your school has "seen the light" and abandoned its antiquated hazing program.

The freshman orientation program, however, has a long way to go before it can be a complete success. More advanced planning, more training of upperclassmen who participate, and a better means of informing freshmen are needed. But if the advocates and the critics of the plan will follow through with the plan this year, and offer constructive criticism for the future, the total effect will be a more mature and well orientated student body.

KEEP OFF THE GRASS !!

by Neil Eskolin

President Hauptert, Dean Rader, illustrious members of the faculty and administration and all you others who are back for another nine month vacation: Welcome. Welcome also to all you lucky people who are in habiting tents, tree huts, large empty boxes, and unattended man holes while waiting for accomodations to be provided.

As is the case most every year at this time, the old campi have undergone quite a change. And also as is the case most every year utter chaos is reigning during this reorganization and adjustment period. But have no fear, by June everything should be under control.

Among the changes this fall are the new library reading room, library annex, library extension, or library reference room (take your pick) located in the renovated Arts' Building; the new classes located in the former quarters of the business and registrar's offices; the new business offices in Colonial Hall and as an extra added attraction this season—the Lear-a-teria for all the fortunate male dorm students.

In this Shangri-la of the Bethlehem area, European chefs are working diligently around the clock preparing deliciously toothsome and appetizing delicacies in an effort to serve the finest food anywhere. All the boarders have been issued membership cards to the Diner's Club personally autographed by that internationally known chef and connoisseur, Charles (Chef Boyardee) Kuhn. Incidentally it's rumored that the Lear-a-teria is recommended by Duncan Hines, '09.

Another change this year is the new dormitory or so it has been called. Rumor has it however, that in actuality the new edifice is going to be used as a fort for the Bethlehem, Allentown and Easton "minutemen." The reason it is not yet open, contrary to popular opinion, is that the cannon which are to protrude from each window have not yet arrived rendering the building defenseless against enemy attack. Seriously though, if you have a chance some day, take a purely objective look at the building and see what it reminds you of.

In the meantime the "minutemen have been holding close order drills and fire arm instruction in "Stalag 17," and in "Stalag 18," a far off outpost on Main St. If any one sees any foreign bodies hovering at a great distance over the campi, don't get panicky. We're not being invaded. It's simply that a few of the more intellectual students on campus are going in for that ever popular pastime of kite-flying.

On a more instructive and educational note. Are you all cognizant of the fact that there are only 77 shopping days 'til Christ-

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Vacation Surprises For Floyd Heller and Family

Most ordinary vacations leave the vacationer relaxed and refreshed but not so for Floyd E. Heller, professor of business law at Moravian. Instead of "relaxing" and "refreshing" the words Floyd Heller used to describe his vacation were, "frightening, terrifying, frustrating, unnerving, exciting, joyous and thrilling."

On Aug. 18, last summer, the Heller campsite in Yellowstone Park was rocked with an earthquake that brought worry and fear to millions around the country and throughout the world.

Although they fortunately suffered no damage or injury in the quake, their Yellowstone campsite was inundated by a flood, a tornado struck, their auto was damaged and various other mishaps occurred.

Heller Returns

Heller, a practicing attorney, returned home to Bethlehem about 2 A.M. Sunday, August 30, to a deluge of anxious queries. It was an entire week after the quake before a friend the Hellers had met in Yellowstone related that the family was safe.

"Before the good word came," said Mrs. Joseph Sucasney, Heller's secretary, "the phone calls were maddening. Everyone wanted to know how he was, and neither I nor his family had received any notice."

As it turned out, a decision by the family to head for one campsite in the park rather than another probably saved the four from injury or death.

"We left on Aug. 8," Heller said, "and at the east entrance of the park we were advised to head for Madison Junction where there was supposedly a good camping and fishing area."

Campsight Sought

"About 3 o'clock Monday afternoon we reached the area and decided we would try to camp for the night at Canyon Village. We took two turns around the area. On the first turn the car in front took the only visible camping site, and on the second turn we inadvertently passed, and the trailer behind us took, the last available site."

Madison Junction was 38 miles to the west, and, Heller explains, Tower Falls, although called a primitive spot, was only 19 miles to the north and it was on the road to another reportedly good fishing spot.

The Hellers decided to head to Tower Falls. After the earthquake struck at 11:30 that night, it was reported that many people were trapped in the Madison Junction area. "We were just thankful didn't go there," the attorney said.

Rain

The family spent hours making the Tower Falls campsite habitable. "You could tell it hadn't rained in a long time" Heller said, "because the dust was about three inches thick on the ground. But as we cleared the campsite, it rained."

Bears kept them busy all the while, he related, and some became quite obnoxious. Arnold Heller, 14, tried to chase one of the bears, but got chased right back. "They uprooted the garbage cans and caused all kinds of mischief."

Because of the encounters with the bears, which were only several feet away, Heller believes it was only natural to think they were causing the disturbance when the earthquake hit.

"We were asleep," he related, "when my wife suddenly shouted, 'the bear's got ahold of the tent.' I was only half awake," Heller said, "but I could see the tent sawing and whipping back and forth as if someone were pulling the ropes of the tent."

Shouts At Bears

He stuck his head out to shout at the bears, hoping to frighten them away, and noted that campers in most of the 20 other campsites in the area were also out shouting at bears. "We were all fooled."

Actually the family was about 40 miles from the center of the damage — in the Hebgen Dam area. Heller recalls that everyone was out walking and some were

Gridders Fight To Standoff With Teachers In Scrimmage

Linemen Sparkle To Brighten Hopes For Upcoming Season

The Moravian College Greyhounds and the Trenton State Teachers played to a standoff in a pre-season scrimmage last Saturday. The scrimmage, played on Moravian's field, was the second for the Greyhounds who are preparing to launch their "satellite offense" at Wilkes on October Third.

Although the Greyhounds were outscored by one touchdown, the scrimmage was considered an improvement over last week's encounter with East Stroudsburg State Teachers College.

The fact that the number two line played on a par with the regular line helps brighten this fall's football picture.

Coe Runs Well

The fine running of sophomore fullback, Dave Coe, makes it look like he can capably replace last year's MVP, George Hollendersky.

Other offensive stars were seniors Bill Hershey and Paul Noonan and sophomore Ron Myers. John "Bucky" Yelovich played a fine game on defense.

The battle for quarterback continues as both sophomore Russ De Vore and freshman John Williams showed improvement.

The squad came through the scrimmage unhurt and seems in good condition.

Intramurals Planned For 'all Season

Rocco Calvo, head football coach, stated this week that the intramural sports program at Moravian this fall will consist mainly of football. He said that he would like to get it started by October first.

Any teams desiring to participate in the Intramural Touch Football League have been requested to turn in team rosters to Calvo in Johnston Hall before Saturday, Sept. 26, 1959.

Calvo also stated that football will be followed by other intramural sports. There will be basketball, softball, and possibly volleyball later in the year.

Peters Chosen As Assistant Line Mentor

The Moravian football Greyhounds will open the 1959 season with the addition of a new member to the coaching staff. Charles Peters will be the new assistant line coach, replacing "Doc" Sydorak who is now head coach for the Bethlehem High Hurricanes.

Peters attended Potomac State Teachers College for two years and graduated from Moravian in 1951. Since that time he has coached football at Northeast Junior High. He still maintains his teaching position at Northeast and resides in Bethlehem with his family.

Rocco Calvo, Assistant Professor of Physical Education, announced this week that the men's physical education activity program will begin Mon. Sept. 28, 1959.

Harriers In Hard Training For Elizabethtown Opener

The cross-country team of Moravian, directed by their competent coach, Paul Kuklantz, are now in the process of training for a tough season starting in just two weeks with Elizabethtown.

Most of the speedsters were contacted by Kuklantz over the summer and they began mid-summer practice to prepare for the early starting season. The team's star sensation of last year, Wendell Terry, who placed first in seven out of eight races, will not be participating this year and his absence will probably retard the team.

Herman Slowed

Due to an operation last year returning letterman Ray Herman will not be in top running condition and might not run his usual fast race.

Returning lettermen are, James Worman, Ray Herman, William Rinker, Jack Jacobs, Hank Sunyak, Richard Gross, Rodney Rafaburn, Bob Durn, and George Fiegel. Eleven new harriers are now engaged in tryouts and will probably press the top nine to work hard to hold their positions.

To conduct time trials for the meets to come, Coach Kuklantz has arranged a scrimmage race with Lehigh University which will be held on the home course on Oct. 2. The Brown and White harriers are expected to bring all their men to these trials including standout Captain Dwight Martindale.

taking down tents and packing up to move out. A group of college students was outside singing and taking it all rather lightly, he said, but some were rather perturbed.

"Yet it was unbelievable," Heller said, "to see the ground underneath your feet and the huge trees shift back and forth. It was terrifying."

Reports Confusing

A report heard on a car radio told the campers of the blackout in New York City due to the overloading of air conditioners. But in the confusion and possibly from a bad report, the group immediately connected the incident with the earthquake.

"The next day we headed back to Canyon Village where we stayed at a motel. Since there were only a few telephone lines open, only emergency calls were allowed to go through." It was at the restaurant phone booth that Heller met Carl Schellhass of 1722 Cloverleaf St. It was Schellhass who ultimately brought home the information that the Hellers were safe.

Calvo Not Too Optimistic As Hounds Near Opener

Rocco Calvo, Moravian College's head football coach, believes that the Greyhounds will be lucky to match last years 4 and 4 record.

This problem is due to the fact of a lack of experienced personnel. Of 11 returning lettermen there are four seniors, Paul Noonan, end from Morristown N. J.; Bob Haney, tackle from Hellertown; Sal DeLuca, center from Phillipsburg, N. J.; Fred Lipari, center from Easton.

Also, there are four juniors, John Olson, end from Allentown, Pa.; Jim Kritis, tackle from Allentown; Sam Maczko, guard from Rutherford, N. J.; and Jeff Gannon, halfback from Rutherford, N. J.

Three Sophomores

In addition there are three sophomores, Dave Coe, fullback from Ocean City, N. J.; John Yelovich, halfback from Bethlehem, Pa.; Ron Myers, halfback from Vestal, N. Y.

The squad has also been hurt because eight of last year's team have not returned for reasons other than graduation. They include Charles Bartolet, tackle;

Bill Liecht, guard; Gene Cowell, end; Dan Turner, halfback; Joe Garbush, tackle; Art Chap, end; Larry Reuben, guard; Russ Conover, quarterback.

In addition to this, six men graduated. The graduates are, George Hollendersky, Tony Matz, Nick Cuttic, Gus Rampone, Captain; Joe Esposito, and Mike Payonk.

Calvo plans to use a variation of last year's Army lonesome end as his offensive weapon and has been working his men on this offensive for two weeks.

The line, according to Calvo, seems to be the strong point of the team. Also, as a whole, the freshmen seem to be shaping up nicely.

Calvo states that how well Moravian does this fall will depend on the quarterbacks.

a lecture to students on the question, "If you were to address a group of college students for the last time, what would be your message?"

Second, French expressed a desire to conduct panel discussions in local high schools for the purpose of encouraging students to continue their education at college. In this way, he said, the student government would observe an important role in the community.

NSA Conference Held

French recounted his experience this past summer at the National Student Body Presidents Conference held at the University of Illinois during the week of August 20. A number of speakers and a series of workshops on student government structure contributed to an extremely enlightening project, French stated.

The Religious Activities Committee reported that Religious Emphasis Week will occur this term from March 14-17. Dr. David Maitland, of Carlton College, Northfield, Minnesota has been invited to be the campus guest speaker.

Harberg Chairman

Fred Harberg was selected to replace Dick Ehrenburg who resigned as chairman of the Religious Activities Committee.

Neil Romanov '63 was appointed by French as NSA coordinator. His duties will be to sort and direct materials received from the advisory organization.

French reported that the Lehigh Valley Student Government Association will reconvene this week. Subject of current interest to the group will be the role of student government in stimulating college students culturally.

USG treasurer Jim MacDonald requested that organizational budgets be submitted to himself or to French by Wednesday.

And here we are again back among our hallowed halls. I could say "ivy covered halls" but most of the ivy got a pretty good trimming this summer. As usual, the campus still has that "unfinished" look about it. Of course, if we ever stop taking things apart or putting them together, it won't be Mo-Mo. There's hope though; they say the new dorm will be habitable in six weeks. There are also signs of improvement on south campus. At least Miss Rettmann now has a place to lay her head.

With all this restoring and repairing going on, it's almost a comfort to see that some things never change—the book bills, the coffee in office chaos . . .

This is as good a place as any to extend best wishes and congrats to Jean Bassford and Jim Galbraith. Also to all the newly weds back on campus and to you with new fraternity pins. Looking back on the summer, I really have only one complaint. Remember all those times Jackie Gleason threatened to send Alice to the moon? He should have sent her and saved us all this national embarrassment.

Finally, a note to the frosh. Here are ten ways to get through college without even trying. (This may also be useful to upper classmen who have decided to take things easy this semester.)

1. Bring the professor newspaper clippings dealing with his subject. If you can't find clippings dealing with his subject, bring clippings at random. He thinks everything deals with his subject.

2. Look alert. If you look at the book, don't stare at it unbelievably and shake it.

3. Nod frequently and murmur, "How true." To you this seems exaggerated. To him, it's quite objective.

4. Sit in front near him. (Applauds only if you intend to stay awake.)

5. Laugh at his jokes. You can tell if he looks up from his notes and smiles expectantly, he has told a joke.

6. Ask for outside reading. You don't have to read it. Just ask for it.

7. If you must sleep, arrange to be called at the end of the class. It creates an unfavorable impression if the rest of the class has left and you sit there alone, dozing.

8. Be sure the book you read during the lecture looks like a book from the course. If you do math in psych class and psych in math class make sure the books match in size and color.

9. Ask questions you think he can answer. Never announce that you've found the answer to the question he couldn't answer, and in your younger brother's second grade reader at that.

10. Call attention to his writings. If you know he's written a book or articles, ask in class if he wrote it.

That's about it for this week. See you all around the campi.

Tekes Win Runnerup Award In National Chapter Contest

Moravian's Epsilon Gamma chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon national social fraternity was recently named the first runner-up in the organization's national "Top TKE Chapter" contest.

The citation was presented to chapter president Robert Volko at a National Conclave of the fraternity held at the Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel, Detroit, Michigan, Sept. 1-5. Volko was the official delegate from Epsilon Gamma and treasurer Ernest Pappajohn served as official alternate.

Alan Bergstein, last year's chapter president, received the award on behalf of his executive committee at a fraternity meeting held Tuesday, Sept. 22 at 11:30 a.m. in the TKE house. The plaque is currently being displayed in the house living room.

The "Top TKE Chapter" awards are based on the records of activity and performance of the various chapters during the past year. The "Small Campus" division includes all colleges having a total of five or less fraternities. First place award in this division went to Delta Epsilon chapter of Fenn College, Cleveland, Ohio, and second place runner-up was Epsilon Alpha chapter of St. Louis University, St. Louis, Missouri.

Phi Mu Epsilon Makes Plans For New Year

Committee members were chosen and plans for the coming year were discussed at a business meeting of Phi Mu Epsilon social sorority held last Monday night in the sorority room, south campus.

Selected to be chairmen of the float committee were Pat Boyle, a senior from Nazareth and Judy Laning, a junior from Palmyra, N. J.

June Brong, a junior from Easton was elected to the furniture committee.

It was also decided that Christmas cards would be made to be distributed to the students at Moravian.

Several other ideas and plans were discussed for the coming year after which a social gathering with refreshments was held.

Delores Lang, president of the group, presided over the meeting.

north campus, and then report to their respective campi for room assignments.

Other suggestions included limiting the mid-orientation week record dance to freshmen only, and restricting the "Welcome Freshmen" dance to Moravian students, with any outside guests registering before the day of the dance.

The advisability of giving the freshmen detailed instructions as to when and where to wear dinks, and buttons before their arrival on campus was also mentioned.

General Discussion

During a general discussion of the program and its contrast with hazing, sophomore David Coe pointed out, "The frosh are split up into different antagonistic groups—those who wear their dinks and those who don't. We were told to try to impress on the freshmen the traditions of the school, but they will not even wear their dinks."

David Cornelius, a member of the sophomore class said, "When I was a freshman I was proud to be a frosh, and we were banded together by hazing. I don't believe that there is any unification this year. Many freshmen boys have also told us that they wish there was hazing."

Coe also mentioned, "There should be a distinction between a frosh and an upperclassman and the frosh should show some respect."

Sophomore Al Bornstein stated that "The true test of this program will come at Homecoming."

Gillespie stated that the freshmen had been advised as to what was expected of them at the freshmen class meeting held that morning. He also mentioned that there had never been a better turnout for such a meeting in the history of the school.

Gillespie concluded by saying that if a freshman is reported as not wearing a dink or button his name will be turned into the Regulations Committee for action.

Tests, campus tours, receptions and a picnic highlighted this year's orientation week for the members of the freshman class.

The week began for the freshmen on Sunday, Sept. 13 when all dorm students arrived on campus. From 6:15 p.m. to 7 p.m., all new students and their parents were guests at a Vesper service held in the Old Chapel on Heckewelder Place, near south campus. During the service, the Rev. Henry Lewis, college chaplain, addressed the group on the subject "I Will Keep Growing." He stressed the college years as a time of growing in wisdom, physical fitness and spiritual endeavor.

Freshmen Register

Freshman registration started off on Tuesday, Sept. 15 at 8 a.m. The rest of the morning was devoted to questions with faculty counselors and tryouts for the college choir and band. A meeting sponsored by the USG to acquaint the new students with student organizations was held at 7:15 p.m. in Johnston Hall.

The annual president's reception for new students at his home took place during the afternoon.

Registration for all students and payment of fees took place on Wednesday, Sept. 16.

Thursday, Sept. 17 saw the freshmen swimming party postponed due to the cold weather, but the picnic at Illick's Mill Park went ahead as scheduled.

Friday and Saturday Sept. 18 and 19 marked the beginning of classes and orientation week was drawn to a close with the annual "Welcome Freshmen" dance at 9 p.m. Saturday in Johnston Hall.
