

God's Influence Always Near, Sawyer States

"God is never far away from us, even in times of utter extremity," maintained the Rev. Edwin A. Sawyer, in a message presented before the student convocation at Johnston Hall yesterday.

Rev. Sawyer is Pastor of the Nazareth Moravian Church and a graduate of Lehigh University, where he was editor of the school paper, the Brown and White.

In his talk entitled, "God's Size and Man's," Rev. Sawyer compared the problems which faced Job in the Old Testament with the problems which face man today. He asserted that we should try to have the same type of faith which Job had.

"It may seem that God has forgotten you but he is always there," stated Rev. Sawyer, who used the book of Job as his text.

In closing, he said that the "infinite magnitude of God is frightening" and that we should try to "live inside the purpose of God."

Series Tickets Now Available At Book Store

Student tickets for the Moravian College Series of community concerts will be distributed at the college book store until Nov. 12. The series is sponsored by the Bethlehem Community Concert Association.

The cost of the tickets has been absorbed by the student activities fee, included in the fall semester bill. Tickets are transferable on the student level.

The series ticket entitles the bearer to admission to four performances, to be held Saturday evenings at 8:30 p.m. in Johnston Hall. The first concert will be held Nov. 28 and will feature Alfred and Herbert Teltschik, duo pianists.

Hoyler Killed; Was Former Alumni Head

Cyril N. Hoyler, '28 former Moravian College Alumni Association president and winner of the Comenius Day award in 1958, was killed in an automobile-train collision in Moosomin, Saskatchewan, Canada, on the morning of October 21.

Manager of technical relations for the David Sarnoff Research Center of RCA at Princeton, N.J., Hoyler was fulfilling a series of lecture engagements in Canada.

Hoyler was a member of the faculty of Moravian College from 1929-1941, during which time he set up the outline of the present physics department of the college and organized the physics curriculum for the then Moravian College for Women.

Special Events Include Dance, Parades, Game

Joan Albrecht, Judy Coddington, Fran LeTowt, Ruth Mauch and Barbara Stefanavage were selected as the five finalists for Homecoming Queen by the student body on Monday and Tuesday.

The finalists will ride in open convertibles in tonight's traditional pajama parade at 7:30 p.m., beginning Moravian's 1959 Homecoming weekend. Four of the girls will comprise the court of the queen, whose name will be announced during the half-time activities at tomorrow afternoon's football game with Albright.

Tomorrow the frosh will again parade through town along with floats representing each sorority and fraternity. It is expected that the band will be marching in both parades.

Homecoming Dance

The Homecoming dance will be held in Johnston Hall tomorrow evening. Joan Albrecht and Judy Laning are in charge of table decorations. Burke Johnson is in charge of bandstand decorations.

Music will be provided by Matt Gillespie's orchestra.

Coffee Hour

Following the afternoon football game there will be a coffee hour in rooms 9 and 10 of Johnston Hall for students, alumni and friends. An alumni committee will serve coffee and sugar cake. Miss Anne Enright is in charge.

Co-chairmen of the Social Activities Committee, which is planning the weekend, are Joan Albrecht and Alan Bornstein.

Miss Albrecht, from Cheltenham, Pa., is a junior Spanish major. She is secretary of USG and co-chairman of the Social Activities Committee.

Miss Coddington is a freshman English major from Martinsville, N. J. She is a member of the Blackfriars.

Miss LeTowt, a senior English major from Bethlehem, was chosen last year to represent Moravian College in the Pocono Mountains Laurel Blossom Festival.

Miss Mauch is a business education major from Elberon, N. J. and a member of the junior class. During her freshman year she was a majorette in the band and a member of the Women's Council.

Miss Stefanavage is a member of the sophomore class. She is an education major from Bethlehem and a majorette in the band.

Students Throw Stones In Protest Action Monday

A brief encounter involving a carload of pranksters, allegedly students from Lehigh University, and a number of Moravian freshmen and sophomores participating in the class olympics took place last Monday evening.

It was reported by reliable sources that approximately eight people parked their car in the vicinity of Johnston Hall, and attempted to light a bonfire planned as part of Homecoming events.

Being seen by students participating in the olympic events, the group retreated to its car and proceeded to drive away from the campus, without having been successful in lighting the fire.

Upon leaving, the car was pelted by stones thrown by agitated students participating in the olympic program. Provocation for this Evaluation . . .

In a recent issue of The Comenian there was a story concerning "an evaluation of the faculty and administration of the college by students." The story went on to state that a committee had been appointed by the USG to set up this program. Although no deadline for a committee report was stated, we expect that the committee will be presenting its report in the not to distant future.

Some investigation reveals that this type of thing was done several years ago. The method then employed was to have each student fill in a prepared form at the end of the period and place it, unsigned, in a plain envelope. This form contained various general categories relating to the field of college teaching and appropriate boxes to be marked indicating the teacher's degree of competence in regard to these criteria.

The envelopes were then deposited with the Chaplain and picked up by the teachers at the end of the day.

The results were varied, as one might expect. Some faculty members were upset; others were pleased.

As this committee begins its work it is necessary to keep in mind a few things.

First of all, this evaluation is just what it says—an "evaluation," not a chance to mercilessly chop your most hated professor behind the cover of anonymity.

If this process is to be of any practical value whatsoever, it must be carried out by all students in a serious and adult manner and must, as nearly as possible, reflect the true teaching power of the teachers involved.

On the other hand, we urge all faculty members to take these opinions and evaluations seriously. As has been pointed out, it is expected that these opinions expressed on the part of the students will be sincere ones and that they will be expressed with no malicious intent.

This could be the start of a necessary and worthwhile practice and it is certainly hoped that the attitudes of all concerned in this first use of the evaluation in several years will establish it as a useful process.

Bethlehem's Benet, 'H.D.' Famous American Poets

by Regina Lawrence

Few Bethlehemites realize that their city is the birthplace of two of America's most renowned literary figures, the great story teller and poet Stephen Vincent Benet and the well known contemporary poetess, Hilda Doolittle.

Hilda Doolittle, better known as "H. D.," was born September 10, 1886. Her father was professor of mathematics and astronomy at Lehigh. She began her schooling in Bethlehem but transferred to Gordon School in Philadelphia and in 1902 entered Friend's Central School to prepare to enter Bryn Mawr. She only remained at Bryn Mawr for two years because of ill health.

Imagist

She has written since her childhood and while she was at college she translated Latin lyrics. In 1911 she went to Europe and visited Italy, France, and London, England, where she met Ezra Pound and subsequently became interested in the current poetry movement. She is said to be one of the first imagists and has remained one of the most loyal.

She wrote articles for Poetry (1913), Des Imagistes (1914), and Some Imagist Poets (1915, 1916, 1917). The Guarantor's Prize was awarded to her in 1915 for her work in Poetry. She married Richard Aldington, a British Imagists poet. While her husband was in the war she took his place as editor of Egoist.

Also during the war she wrote her first books, Sea Garden, The Walls Do Not Fall, and Tribute To the Angels. She was given the Helen Haire Levinson award in recognition of the high merit of her contribution to modern literature.

At present she is a resident of London and has made a study of that city during the last war, which may or may not be published.

Benet

Stephen Vincent Benet was born in Bethlehem on July 22, 1898, but his family moved a few months after his birth. He came from a family of soldiers and writers, in fact the Benets and the Van Dorens are the first writing families of New York.

His father had a great love for poetry and read to his children even when they were very young. Benet's education began at Summerville Academy, and later he attended Yale. While at Yale he was chairman of the Yale Literary Magazine and wrote six dramatic monologues, Five Men and Pompey, and Young Adventure. The summer of 1921 he wrote his first novel, The Beginning of Wisdom. That autumn he received a fellowship from the Sorbonne.

Two years later when he returned to the United States he wrote King David and the Nation, the prize winning poem of the of sonnets, The Golden Corpse year. In 1925 he wrote an octave and The Ballad of William Sycamore 1790-1880.

Won Pulitzer Prize

With the aid of the Guggenheim Fellowship in 1926 he was able to work on John Brown's Body, which won him the Pulitzer Prize. With this poem he proved that a long narrative poem could hold the same attention as a novel. He broadcast his own radio play, The Headless Horseman. His best known short story The Devil And Daniel Webster, is included in his collection of short stories, Thirteen O'Clock.

In 1932 he received the Shelly Memorial Award and in 1933 he received the Roosevelt Medal for his contribution to the American letters. He was the Vice President of the National Institute of Arts and Letters and the editor of Yale Series of Younger Poets. He had been sick most of his life and died March 13, 1943 at the age of 44. In 1944 he was awarded posthumously the Pulitzer Prize for his book of verses, Western Star.

Coffee Klatsch

by Nan Traubitz

Good morning, all coffee-drinkers and anyone else lucky enough to have time to scan this bit of nonsense. Do you realize that this is Homecoming Weekend? (I'm sure you realize that it's also mid-semester, so I won't mention that). After all the worry and fuss, the float is finished (almost), Johnston

Hall is decorated (almost), Cinderella has a new dress, and Prince Charming has his shoes polished.

Clewell Hall has a new resident. The girls say they need the four-footed feline to catch mice, but it seems to me they just want an excuse to keep a charming pet.

Have you been in the library annex lately? It's amazing how an evening in the library brings out peoples' true character. These cases may or may not be typical:

The pre-med major. Arrives at 6:45 p.m., collects thirteen reference books from the desk sits near the door, removes his shoes, props his feet up on the opposite chair, slouches, and doesn't move until 11 o'clock.

The english major. Arrives at 7:30 p.m., with two neat packs of 3 x 5 lined index cards, and disappears into the reference stacks. Vague muttering and flying dust for an hour and a half.

The history major. Enters at 8 p.m., carrying six large notebooks. Collects two reference books on intellectual history from the desk, spreads his books over an entire table, and takes notes for hours.

The pre-theo. Usually shows up about 9:30 p.m., with a bottle of ink and two little boxes, hides way back in the seminary corner, and proceeds to spend two and one-half hours making Greek and Hebrew flash cards.

Finally, the frosh, who religiously picks up three books on Western Civilization and leaves at 9:30 p.m.

Enough of these sage observations. Keep your fingers crossed for clear weather and have a GREAT weekend.

Gridders, Runners Entertain Albright During Homecoming

by Bob Fatzinger

Both the football and cross country squads will resume action in tomorrow's annual Homecoming Day festivities. The Lions from Albright College will invade the campus and provide the competition in both events.

Coach Rocco Calvo's eleven absorbs a 6-0 defeat at the hands of Lebanon Valley in what is turning out to be the annual "Mud Bowl."

On the other hand coach Paul Kuklantz's cross country squad is 0-4 on the season.

Last week's inclement weather was definitely a deciding factor in the Lebanon Valley contest. The Blue and Grey was held to a mere 77 yards rushing and the satellite passing attack could never get off the ground, as four of twelve attempts were intercepted. If the weather man cooperates, the Hounds attack should run smoothly tomorrow afternoon.

In recalling previous encounters with the Lions the records show that the Hounds are trailing in the series, 15-7. The Hounds defeated Albright last year by a 15-12 score.

The Albright team has not beaten our Moravian footballers since the 1953 season. Since that time Moravian has disposed of Albright in a very convincing fashion. In boasts a 2-2 slate and will try to go over the .500 mark after Calvo's first season, 1955, the Greyhounds chalked up their biggest victory in the current win skein, 35-13.

Albright carries a 3-3 slate into tomorrow's game. They have beaten Drexel Tech, Lebanon Valley, and Lycoming while bowing to East Carolina, Gettysburg, and Scranton.

Although the Lions have beaten Lebanon Valley 18-0, a comparison is very difficult to make because of the weather conditions that prevailed last Saturday.

The visitors operate from a T-formation and are quarterbacked by sophomore Gary Chapman.

Mike Varano and Gerry Bricker, halfback and fullback respectively, are coach John Postlan's big ground gainers. The Lions are now 3-1 in MAC competition.

Unfortunately there is very little information regarding the Albright cross country team. Early in the season they were beaten by Haverford College 21-36.

In last year's meet held on the Albright course, the Hounds took a decisive 20-37 decision. Led by Wendell Terry, Ray Herman and Jim Worman, the harriers from Albright were completely outclassed.

Hounds Bow To Dutchmen In A Close 6-0 Decision

The Greyhound eleven traveled to Lebanon Valley last Saturday and bowed to the Flying Dutchmen by a 6-0 margin. Barry Holstein scampered 35 yards to score the game's lone touchdown in the fourth quarter, climaxing a 77 yard drive.

The Hounds, in losing, suffered their second defeat in four contests. Both losses were shutouts. A combination of ankle-deep mud (the first half was played in a downpour) and a stern Lebanon Valley defense prevented the Hounds from entering the scoring column.

Moravian, seeking to overcome Lebanon Valley's huge line which averaged 222 pounds, had concentrated their practice sessions on passing and end runs, but were unable to launch their wide-open attack due to the poor weather.

Greyhound quarterbacks Russ DeVore and John Williams threw ten passes between them, six of which were caught. Unfortunately, four of the six were gathered in by Lebanon Valley defenders.

Olympics a la Mo Begin; 'M' Club Hosts Events

The Varsity "M" club in an effort to promote better relations between the incoming frosh and the sophomores, this year sponsored the Moravian Olympics. This program consists of a series of sports events for both the women and the men.

A point system was employed, the winning of an event contributing a set number of points to the team score. The team with the highest score wins the Olympics.

Flying Start

This past Monday afternoon the games got off to a flying start in the men's events with the frosh scoring a quick 10 points by winning the 100 yard dash. Walt Adylotte was the fast man for the frosh, with frosh Jack Freyberger in the number two position.

The sophs bounced back in a hurry. With engineer Jim Gano at the controls, and Dave Huns-

The Sports Story

by George Fiegel

Do you hear the scamper of little feet coming from Johnston Hall these days? Coaches Calvo and Marcincin are having those dunkers out there every night in practice for a strong season. The team is a small one this year, but lightening fast, so we're in for some fast and exciting basketball this year.

Well, we've reached mid-season for the fall sports this year. The football has a 2-2 record up to now and the cross-country is 0-4. Although the gridgers have some tough going in the next few games, the hill and dalers should find the competition a lot less stiff.

And now for my developing predictions which reached a high of 80% last week. If the Engineers of Lehigh play well this weekend, they'll be able to tumble Bucknell by a score of 13-6. Dieruff is coming to Bethlehem High's stadium to meet a defeat at the hands of the Hurricanes. Our Hounds of Moravian will beat the Lions of Albright and maybe duplicate their score from last year, 15-12.

The Lafayette Leopards host Gettysburg on their home field. Lafayette, fresh after their upset over Bucknell, and the Bullets, after a win over Muhlenberg, will probably make a good match but the Leopards will win out in the long run. The only Lehigh Valley team I expect will lose is Muhlenberg. The Mules face a tough Hofstra at Hempstead, Long Island. This one sided game will go to Hofstra 33-12.

The cross country and football teams face tough opponents tomorrow when they oppose Albright. The cross country team, absent one runner, will have to push out in the beginning of the race and outrun their opponents on the hills. The football will have to tackle hard and play a steady offense. The only way these men can get out there and do this is with the support of their fellow students. When you're in the stands, don't just sit there, yell and scream for Mo-Mo. A little support never hurt any team.

That's the sports story for this week.

WAA Prepares For Year At Organization Meeting

The organizational meeting of Women's Athletic Association was held on Wednesday, Oct. 20, with Phyllis Zwarych, president, presiding.

Names were received for the intra-mural bowling league, and any team of five that wishes to join is asked to notify Phyllis Zwarych, Judy Clay, Barbara Snyder, or Miss Ruth Ackerman, instructor in physical education.

It was proposed that the Constitution should be studied by all the members and that all suggested revisions be presented at the next meeting.

Miss Ackerman suggested that a general recreational director be brought to the campus for several days and recommended Dr. William Allen from the University of Pittsburgh, with whom she had personal contact.

An informal party for women students to be held following Christmas vacation was also discussed.

The third Wednesday evening of each month was set aside for meeting nights.

Miss Ackerman announced that basketball season will start on November 16.

cher and Ed Ressler adding the point fuel, the sophs steamed to a 20-6 pleasure cruise over the hapless frosh in the touch football game. This win put the sophs ahead by 10 points.

The third event was the punting contest. In this event three men from each class were given three opportunities to give the pigskin a long ride. Keeping the pressure on, Dave Hunscher came through with a booming 55 yarder which was enough to stay in front of all competition and take the punting honors for the sophomores.

The last event was the football throwing contest. The sophs thought they had it all sewed up on Ed Ressler's 50 yard heave, but frosh Barry Schollenberger had the last laugh and threw the pugskin a tremendous 65 yards to take that event and shorten the sophomores lead to 10 points.

The women students of the sophomore class were victorious for the second consecutive year in Co-Olympics A 'la Mo. Scoring a total of 20 points, they were followed by the juniors with 14 points, the seniors with 13 points, and the frosh with 8 points.

In individual events the places and entrants were as follows:—Basketball Throw — Judy Clay, more, first, Judy Studwell, Frosh, second, Nancy Helms, Jr., third, and Phyllis Zwarych, Sr., fourth.

The annual tug of war between the frosh and sophomore girls was also planned, but due to the unavailability of a strong rope, it had to be postponed. If a rope is available, the tug of war is to be held sometime before the Homecoming Game, and if there isn't an available rope, the frosh will have to concede to the sophomores and wear their dinks until Thanksgiving.

'Bauertanzeri' Is Scheduled By Sophomores

The sophomore class will sponsor "The Bauertanzeri," a party which will be held Friday, Nov. 6, in Johnston Hall from 8-11 p.m.

The announcement of the party, which is open to the entire student body, was made early this week by John Schlegel, chairman of the advertising committee.

According to Schlegel, Paul Weiland and his group of "music makers, well known entertainers all over the eastern United States—and three couples, all dressed in Pennsylvania Dutch grab, will conduct folk dancing and folk games."

Tickets will be sold by sophomore class officers and certain members of the class. They will also be sold at the door.
