USG Election For Sec. Set; Meeting Tues.

The first meeting of United Student Government (USG) will be held in room 301 on South Campus at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 27, according to James O. MacDonald, USG president.

A general outline of what the USG hopes to accomplish will be presented at this meeting, which is open to all students. Organizational budgets must be submitted by Tuesday, Oct. 4; however it would be appreciated if they could be submitted at the first meeting, MacDonald said.

MacDonald stated further that an election will be held shortly for USG secretary because Susan Wilbraham, who was elected secretary for this year, has not returned to the college. Petitions for nominations, which must be signed by at least one-eighth of the student body, are to be presented at the first meeting. Nominations may also be made from the floor.

The primary election is tentatively planned for October 3 and 4 with the final election to be held a week later.

Halcyon Sartwell, Dean of Women, announced that all organizations should compile a list of their officers and their choice of advisors for the coming year. These lists should be submitted to her at the coming USG meeting by the respective representatives, she stated.

Hauptert Upholds 'National Purpose' At First Assembly

Addressing students at the opening convocation of the academic year, college President Dr. Raymond S. Hauptert said last Friday that "it is necessary to think about our national purpose."

The recent series on "National Purpose," he said, which appeared jointly in Life Magazine and The New York Times, has served as an excellent basis for a thorough investigation of the problems which face the free world in the cold war against Communism.

Hauptert saw three errors being made by the free nations in the cold war. These were a lack of faith in the conviction that

The renovation of Colonial Hall culminates a three-point program of renovation spearheaded by a recent $10,000 grant by the Kresge Foundation.

Approximately $72,000 was gathered for the building of the library annex, the construction of four classrooms on the first floor of Comenius Hall, and the converting of Colonial Hall from dormitory area into administrative offices, stated Paul E. Cunningham, Superintendent of Building and Grounds, early this week.

The first and second floors of Colonial Hall have been completely air conditioned, redecorated, and relighted. The heating plant within the building was converted from coal to oil. Approximately $46,000 was required for the renovation thus far, Cunningham continued.

The reconstruction program in Colonial Hall is not yet complete. In the near future, the third floor, which is at present a dormitory, will be used for administrative purposes, he concluded.

Student Congress Delegates Consider Policy Directives

Over 1000 delegates attending the National Student Congress, convening at the University of Minnesota from August 22-September 1, considered and voted on policies which will govern the actions of the United States National Student Association in the coming year.

Representing Moravian at the Congress was Thomas Christianson, United Student Government Treasurer.

A series of pre-Congress conferences dealt with events and issues concerning student affairs and the resolutions arising out of these conferences served in large part as debate material for the plenary sessions of the Congress.

The conferences included student body presidents, student editors, NSA coordinators, and academic deans. Alan Lippman, Comenian Associate Editor, attended the Student Editorial Affairs Conference from August 17-22.

Congress delegates, representing some one million American college students, established a program calling for the selection of one major issue as a theme of action and discussion for all college students for the forthcoming year.

The purpose of the project, entitled "Project Awareness," is to create increased awareness of national and international issues on the part of college students by concentrating on one issue for the entire year.

The project is based on the principle that "mature and intelligent reflection on any issue can only be afforded by individuals well-informed on world national affairs."

Work Expected To Begin On Student Union Shortly

Final agreement with the contractor for the Student Union building has been reached, Robert P. Snyder, Director of Development, announced Tuesday, and the contract has been signed. Work on the project will begin shortly.

H. E. Stoudt and Sons, of Allentown, was accepted as the lowest bidder with an amount of $666,777. This low bid, however, was in excess of the original estimate by $50,000.

The $50,000 above the planning estimate was caused by two main changes by the contractor in the building. The original plan, which called for air-conditioning in the dining areas only, was enlarged for installation reasons to encompass the entire building.

The area which will be used in future years for bowling alleys will be excavated along with the rest of the building and used temporarily as storage space to prevent later excavation costs.

This added cost to the building of the Student Union will necessitate adding an extra three years to the length of time in which the Student Union fee is to be collected. The time would be extended from the originally intended nineteen years to approximately twenty-two years.

The executive committee of the Board of Trustees authorized officers of the board over a week ago to agree with the contractor, and the treasurer of the board was authorized to borrow the necessary funds.

The actual costs, which will include equipment, architects and other expenses, and furnishings, will run about $800,000. A government loan of $530,000 will cover a portion of the building, but the remainder of the money has to be borrowed elsewhere.

The lowest bid for the kitchen construction, $91,000, was submitted by the Ace Hotel and Bar Supply of Allentown.

Twelve months will be allowed for the construction of the building, and the opening will likely occur around October, 1961.

Speaker Advocates Nixon-Lodge Vote In "Grave World"

"We are faced with the gravest situation our civilization has ever known," commented Elkins Weatherill, Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners for Montgomery County, Pa.

This statement was part of a Republican party campaign speech which was delivered yesterday at 11:30 a.m. in Johnston Hall.

Weatherill cautioned that Americans must make careful considerations before they entrust the nation's leadership to one party or the other.

He cited the past record of the Republican party in regard to foreign affairs, national defense and

Class Of '64 Rated 7% Over Present Sophs

A freshman class of 244 students, displaying a stronger scholastic potential than any other entering class, began its college education last week as the new school year got underway.

In a convocation held during orientation week, Samuel Kilpatrick, Director of Admissions, announced that the mean average in the scholastic aptitude tests taken by the freshmen was seven per cent higher than that of last year and that this was a record.

He further stated that 97 per cent of the freshmen graduated in the upper half of their senior class in high school, 76 per cent graduated in the upper two fifths and that 50 per cent graduated in the upper one fifth.

A great interest in further education has also been indicated by the new freshmen. Eighty-two per cent of them have stated ambitions to pursue professions which call for graduate study.

Of the 244 students which were selected from over 1000 applications (a record for the school), there are 165 men and 79 women.

President Cites New Faculty; Three Instructors Advanced

Nine new faculty members were introduced to the student body by Moravian College President, Dr. Raymond S. Hauptert, at the opening convocation of the academic year last Friday. Also three members of the present faculty have been advanced in rank.

Karl L. Abosch, John L. Mason, Mrs. Monica Schantz, Mrs. Louise Sherman, and Gerhard D. Zeller were introduced as newcomers to Moravian College.

Richmond E. Johnson has been promoted to assistant professor of psychology, Jack R. Ridge has been advanced from assistant to associate professor of physics, and Dr. Ruth M. Roberts has been advanced from assistant to associate professor of mathematics.

Pride and Potential

With the beginning of the 1960-61 academic year, Moravian College has welcomed into its "family" potentially the finest freshman class in its long history.

It is a class which has distinguished itself in high school academic work. Nearly all graduated in the upper half of their class and a full fifty per cent graduated in the upper one fifth—a very fine record indeed.

This seems to indicate very strongly that Moravian is gaining a highly respectable academic standing among institutions of higher learning.

There was a time when people said, "If you can't go to college, go to Moravian." Such is certainly no longer the case as is evidenced by the caliber of student that Moravian is now matriculating.

Improvement in the quality of the student is related to the quality of the faculty and administration, who, never satisfied with the status quo, constantly seek the advancement of the college.

However, changes in an institution such as a college take a great deal of time. Problems cannot be ironed out overnight. Moravian's growth in recent years has brought with it many problems and circumstances which the college and the students are anxious to have eliminated.

But, most students want immediate action on all matters and they are not content to make the best of it for the present and help the college through cooperation and understanding. Instead too many of them fly off the handle and condemn the school for everything that is wrong and refuse to do their share in aiding in the alleviation of the problems which exist.

This we feel is a point that must be made to the new frosh. Stand behind our school. To a great degree, college is what the student makes of it. Don't be quick to judge or indict but rather be eager to improve the school in constructive rather than destructive ways.

Moravian has a wonderful heritage behind it and an even brighter future before it. The next four years of its future is largely in the hands of the new frosh.

It is our hope that they will make the most of their years here and that they will be able to make Moravian proud of them but also that they can and will be proud of Moravian. NPE

The Trouble With NSA

The United States National Student Association is probably one of the most misunderstood student organizations extant. This situation became glaringly apparent at the National Student Congress last August.

The point is that the delegates to the Congress, the member universities and colleges, and the NSA administrators themselves are not aware of the actual nature of NSA, expounded, we feel, inadequately in that body's constitution.

Although it is not stated specifically in the Constitution's Preamble (and this is where the major difficulty lies), it is implied that NSA has the authority to attempt to represent national student opinion of such matters as desegregation, loyalty oath, etc. NSA purports:

- 1) "to promote international understanding and fellowship,"
- 2) "to preserve the interests and integrity of the government and Constitution of the United States of America."

This leaves room for broad interpretation. When the matter of sit-ins in the South arose last year, the National Executive Committee (an interim body which carries out NSA business when the Congress is not in session) saw fit to freely interpret the Constitution and to actively support the sit-in movement. The NEC was criticized by colleges which felt that prior consultation with them was in fact necessary before such action could be taken, feeling that their views were not fairly represented.

The fact that the NEC was challenged as to its authority in taking stands without adequate prior consultation of members led to the amending of the Constitution to state that "all member schools shall be notified of a pending interpretation of NSA policy" and given adequate opportunity to make their dissenting views known in the case of opposition to a particular bill.

Such situations indicate a lack of understanding—of the members, lack of understanding of the role and workings of NSA, and of the administrators of the organization, a lack of understanding of the perspective of the issues which indeed face the students who make up the association.

NSA has been and still is a particularly peculiar idealistic body. As such, it lacks the ability (or desire) to put these issues in their proper perspective. The fault lies in these areas:

- 1) NSA is not a representative body. Composed of 1,000,000

Cooperation With Upperclasses Needed For Frosh Adjustment

by Anne Barnes

Another year at Moravian has begun, and a new freshman class has entered the college. The question at hand, however, is this: Are the freshmen going to be able to effectively become a part of the college? Doubt is in the minds of many of the upperclassmen.

A college, this one especially, always welcomes a newcomer and hopes that he, too, will feel the sense of belonging that most of the upperclassmen have found here. But when a person, in any phase of life, acts arrogant, can he ever expect to find his place? A degree of humility and a willingness to accept authority are two important steps to maturity and to accepting the full responsibility of being a college student.

The freshman must realize that the main purpose for his wearing the dink and name button is not degradation, but is a means for him to become known on the campus both by his classmates and by the upperclassmen. The freshman should realize that there is much to learn about getting along with other people.

In the place of hazing at Moravian, an orientation program has been established to help the freshmen achieve their desired status. The freshmen have been asked ONLY to wear dinks, name buttons, and knee socks or ties, at specified times. Participation in extra-curricular activities is advocated also to help the freshman adjust socially. It is in the spirit of assistance and fellowship which the program was evolved.

In the event that a freshman does not comply with the rules of the Freshman Orientation Committee, his name is reported by any member of the Sophomore class to the Regulations Committee. A second offense sends him to the dean's office and a third sends him before the committee for appropriate disciplinary action. A student who is not cooperative may be asked to withdraw from the college.

However, it is NOT the wish of the upperclassmen that a freshman should act in a manner which would make any discipline necessary. Resentment toward an upperclassman, when he asks "Frosh, where's your dink?" is no attitude for a mature person, if the spirit of the program is understood and appreciated.

Neither is harsh hazing the answer. A freshman should learn what is expected of him and why. Members of every class must learn the essentials of getting along in college. An open mind and a cheerful, gracious attitude are all anyone asks.

The Mailbox

Extra-Curricular Responsibility

To the Editor:

Before we become too involved in another school year, I feel we should pause for just a moment to consider how much of a part we actually take in the extra-curricular activities on campus. In looking back over the past year, one discovers that there is much room for improvement.

Although space does not permit a detailed explanation of the lack of participation on the part of most students, some of the more unsuccessful activities must be mentioned. They are: the college band; USG meetings; class meetings and class sponsored functions; pep rallies; and dances. Many of the clubs and organizations met with only a handful of people and could not accomplish what they wished because of this lack of interest.

I believe the reason for the failure of many organizations is quite simple. The reason is that there is a complete lack of responsibility on the part of the students here at Moravian. We have the smallest kinds of excuses to offer for not attending meetings, etc. and expect just a few of the students to do all the work.

Therefore, as we begin a new school term, let us for a change, think of the other person before we think of ourselves. Only when we decide to take on responsibilities, and by responsibilities one means those tasks which we like as well as dislike, only then will we greatly increase our relationship to our fellow students and to Moravian College in general.

Judy Clay '61

American students, it speaks for only one-third of the total collegiate enrollment in this country. But the public image is that NSA represents all students, and this is certainly not the case. Universal membership must be a goal of the group.

2) NSA is dominated by elements which seek to have their own way. This situation has been partially overcome by the amendment outlined above, but more adequate representative measures are necessary.

The answer to this muddle seems to present itself: a mass education, or re-education and a re-definition of NSA's aims and purposes are required. For it is obvious that NSA and its inner workings are not fully understood and appreciated.

There is great potential in the projects which NSA sponsors; there is great value in the concern which NSA places in the plight of students fighting for basic democratic rights and freedoms; there is great hope in the future of an organization, which, ostensibly opposed to Communism and the suppression of freedom, can play an integral part in the winning of the cold war by the Free World. Such value must not be undermined by an inadequate understanding of the functioning of an organization designed ultimately to speak for the American student. AJL

BERRY PATCH Re: Eight O'clocks

by Al Lippman

We were sitting in the Emcee the other morning partaking of our ritual cup of brew and trying to decide how to muster up enough determination to face the terror before us: five eight-o'clock classes per week. This situation is almost as ungodly and unbearable as six eight o'clock classes per week!

But there we were: java in hand, books about us, raincoat draped over our shoulders (appropriately, it was raining) on the first Monday morning of class.

We surmised on the basis of our investigations that there are at Moravian two great kingdoms of beings, those who do not have eight o'clock classes, and those who do. Those who don't were either present or absent (the hour was 7:45 a.m.), the absent being, we presumed asleep (Ah! Great pastime) and the present being either chattering noisily about their luck at drawing no eight-o'clock's or gazing smugly at those whose misfortune it was to have contracted the awesome malady.

Rousing ourself from our malcontent, we determined that there was only one way to deal with the enemy, and that was this: Only by arriving late could we adequately register our dissatisfaction and virulence. Ha! Our face lit up with fiendish delight! There's the rub! Aglow with the pride of self-assertion, we took our time finishing our coffee, strolled lazily up to the counter for another, and finishing that, casually gazed at the yonder clock, which smartly informed us of the correct time: 8:06. Very well, we thought, now's the time to act.

Returning our empty cup to the counter, and gathering our books, we made our way leisurely toward the door and slowly ascended the steps. Arriving at our destination, we (But wait! . . .)

Yes, kind reader, there is but one travesty infinitely worse than the scourge of the eight-o'clock class, and that is the cancelled eight o'clock class, of which one is informed upon arrival. Bah. The college world's a cruel, unmerciful place. May better times betide us . . .

Harriers Opening Season With Experienced Runners

The Moravian College Harriers led by Coach Paul Kuklantz open their cross country season against Elizabethtown College October 4 on the Greyhounds' home course.

Elizabethtown defeated the Hounds 21-34 in their last meeting and is regarded as one of the Hounds' toughest opponents this year.

The Moravian squad will be seeking to better last year's record of six wins and four losses.

The squad has seven returning lettermen including top runner George Fiegel. Other letter winners include Jim Worman, Tom Grammes, Byron Borst, Jack Jacob, Hank Sunyak and Rod Rathbun.

The distance the boys will run varies from four and a half to five and a half miles. In practice they run from two to six and a half miles a day.

In making observations for the coming season Coach Kuklantz said, "There should be more freshmen out for the team. There were many who on their applications said that they had track or cross country experience. If they come out we'll probably have a very good season."

Calvo Calls First Meeting For Athletes

Early this week, Rocco Calvo, assistant professor of physical education, announced that all teams interested in participating in the fall intramural program, should send a representative to his office after Thursday's convocation in Johnston Hall.

Calvo also announced that persons interested in intramural bowling should attend this meeting. Each team will consist of four men.

Later in the year the intramural program will feature volleyball, basketball, handball, and softball.

Calvo further stated that the meeting of the Varsity-M club scheduled for yesterday will be held next Thursday after convocation.

Anyone interested in writing for the Sports Staff of The Comenian may report to the Comenian Office Monday or Tuesday in the afternoon or evening. All students are invited to come. No experience is necessary.

Hounds, In Two Scrimmages, Show Strong Defensive Game

Coach Rocco Calvo watches as his charges run through a play at a recent practice session. The Hounds open the season at home on Oct. 1 against Wilkes. Photo by Galle

Opener Oct. 1; Starting Lineup Still Undecided

Rocco Calvo and his gridmen traveled to Ursinus last Saturday for a three and one half hour scrimmage.

This was the second scrimmage for the Hounds, the first being against Kutztown State College on Sept. 10. The Kutztown scrimmage was held on Moravian field.

In both scrimmages Calvo was well pleased with the squad. On both days the ground defense showed a marked improvement over last year.

However, Calvo feels that the pass defense needs some polishing. According to the Moravian head coach, "a few got over our heads." He intends to work on this weakness in the practice sessions before the first game with Wilkes on Oct. 1.

On the offensive side of the ledger, the Hounds showed a good ground game. They were able to move the ball well.

Their passing game was not up to par and Calvo intends to work on that along with ball handling.

Calvo's squad is in better shape this year, in that 36 men are out for the squad compared to 29 last year. With more personnel Calvo has some battles on his hands for the starting positions.

At the ends, John "Lonesome End" Olsen and All-East tackle Jim Kritis are good bets for the starting eleven.

The starting tackles will probably be Sam Maczko and Tony Gawronski, both returning lettermen. They will be backed up by Ron Gori and Bob Dietrich.

At the left guard slot, Ed Weinhofer and Ken Alexander, both freshmen, are doing well.

Jim Mazza and Doug Wilkens are battling over the starting right guard assignment.

Letterwinner Dick Bedics has the advantage and will probably start in the center slot.

Freshman Andy Semmel has the edge at quarterback enabling Calvo to move "Jabby" Williams to left halfback. Battling Williams are Bucky Yelovich and Jeff Gannon.

Jim Frank, showing mid-season form has the edge over Jim Kelyman at right half.

Dave "Crusher" Coe and Bill Hino are battling it out for the starting job at fullback.

"The freshmen are fitting in and helping us out," says Calvo. "We are faster this year and the team spirit is higher. The teams we face this year are good, but we are also better than we were last year."

Hauptert . . .

(Cont. from p. 1, col. 1) "truth and justice will eventually triumph," a lack of a sense of mission and purpose, and a failure to see morality as a constituent of religious belief.

Presented to the college was a 50-star flag which had flown over the Capitol last July 4. The flag was obtained through the efforts of the Veteran's Organization and formally presented by United States Representative Willard S. Curtin.

We were going to remain anonymous, at least until we finished predicting football scores but they said we could not do that. So meet your new sport editors Tom Fromhartz and Jay Scholl.

We decided to be co-editors because it would make the work easier and then we could blame each other in case of trouble.

It's good to see Dave "Crusher" Coe back and looking so trim. He lost 25 pounds over the summer. Dave's having a real battle with Bill Hino for that starting fullback job.

We see that Jim Kritis has been moved from tackle to end. To hear Jim tell it, he won't miss a pass all year.

Now a sad note. The Dean of Lehigh Valley Basketball Coaches, J. Birney Crum has retired from his position as head basketball coach at Muhlenberg College. Birney had some fine teams during his coaching career.

Cross country coach Paul Kuklantz has sent out an appeal for runners for his squad of Harriers. He would like to see some of you experienced Frosh out there.

Coach Calvo is pleased with the performance of his freshman gridmen. Keep up the good work gang. He thinks some of those boys really want to play ball.

We see Jack Van Natta is back on campus. He has been in the minors since he signed with the Pittsburgh organization a few years ago. We understand he's doing very well for himself. Good going Jack!

Well, that's all for this week. We'll see you again next week when we stick our necks out with our first predictions.

New Directors Appointed To Publicity Department

Mrs. John Strohmeier has been appointed director of the college's public relations program, and Mr. Guy Stroh is now director of newspaper publicity.

These two persons are taking over the duties of Mrs. Katherine Phelps Beaupre, who directed college publicity until last spring.

NSA Congress . . .

Another stand taken by the delegates states that the college student should be concerned with social and political issues of off-campus natures. "The student should seek with interest those problems which will lead to responsible involvement in social and political action," the resolution states.

In this connection, it continues, the student should be concerned not simply with the problems of direct relevance to the academic community, but as well with those great problems and issues of national and international life.

Richard Rettig, 23, graduate of the University of Washington and former NSA program vice-president, succeeded Donald A. Hoffman to the presidency.

Also during the 11-day meeting, delegates participated in numerous workshops, subcommittee and committee meetings, and heard addresses by Victor Reuther of the United Auto Workers, George Romney, president of American Motors, Charles Percy, president of Bell and Howell, and Allard K. Lowenstein, past president of NSA.

Proposals adopted by Congress delegates, in addition to those reported above, included the following:

—Disapproval of loyalty oaths and disclaimer affidavits, and especially those provisions in the National Defense Education Act.

—Condemnation of all expulsions, recriminations, and reprimands of students and professors which are in violation of the principles of free expression of ideas.

—Urging students to take a greater part, along with faculty and administration, in the planning of the educational policy of their institutions.

—The belief that totalitarianism, in any form, is an infringement upon the individual rights of the student and his opportunity to pursue his education in a free and unfettered atmosphere.

—Strong support for the sit-in movement and for non-violent protest action.

Resolutions dealing with freedom of the collegiate press and censorship of student publications were acted upon by delegates attending the Student Editorial Affairs Conference. Theme of the conference was "The Right
