Union Group, USG Discuss Union's Future

by John Schlegel

Should the Student Union operate separately from the United Student Government (USG)? This was the center of controversy as members of the Student Union Committee and USG held Tuesday evening in the South Campus dining room.

The Student Union Committee presented their findings as to the organization and running of the Student Union when the building is completed.

"The group should plan around what is best for the students in the long run," Robert P. Snyder, vice-president for finance facilities and development, stated. The dispute which followed centered around the relationship of these two organizations.

Henry Cordray disputed the Hosler is a teacher in the meteorology department at Penn State and has led research pro-

Heller Cites Purpose Of Christian College At Convo Yesterday

"The chief purpose of a Christian Church related college is to educate not evangelize," stated Dr. James J. Heller, professor of Biblical Theology-New Testament, at Thursday's convocation in Johnston Hall.

Speaking on "the vocation of a Christian College," Heller, who will assume the duties of vice-president and dean of the college, June 1, said "the promise of a content and increasing student body gives Moravian College the chance to become the kind of college it would like to be."

"Moravian College," he added, "must be willing to measure its standards honestly," for the college's first responsibility is to the college itself.

Heller closed by saying, "Moravian is not seriously concerned about existence, for our presence assures this; however it is concerned about the quality of its life, and it seeks to discover the meaning of its purpose."

Couillard, Heller And Snyder Given New Responsibilities; Shao Granted Professorship

The Moravian College Board of Trustees in their meeting of Friday, April 24, created three vice-presidencies in the Moravian College administration, and Dr. Otis H. Shao was promoted from associate professor to full professor of Government.

The new vice-presidents are, Dr. Vernon W. Couillard, formerly dean of the Moravian Theological Seminary, now vice-president and dean of the Seminary; Dr. James J. Heller, recently named dean of the college, now vice-president and dean of the college; and Robert P. Snyder, formerly director of development, now vice-president for finance facilities and development.

The trustees made the appointment Friday morning, April 14, following recommendations presented last Thursday evening April 13, by Dr. Raymond S. Hauptert, college president in a report.

Couillard has been dean of the Seminary and John Taylor Hamilton Professor of Doctrinal Theology since 1947.

Heller was professor of Biblical Theology-New Testament at the Seminary from 1950 until his appointment as dean of the college becomes effective in June.

WRMC To Air Home Games; Program Schedule Expands

WRMC will broadcast all home baseball games for the remainder of the spring as a part of the station's expanded scheduling announced Bernard Staller, station manager early this week.

Staller stated that plans are being formulated to present the Four Freshmen over the air either live, taped, or by a telephone interview as a part of their publicity program and as a preview of their appearance on campus at Senior Farewell on May 6.

Plans to have faculty members present review lectures before exams are being worked out and one faculty member has already consented, said Staller.

He also said that the panel discussions which have been heard on "Commentary" have met with success and will be continued.

Jack Ridge, chairman of the physics department, and Terry Jones, chairman of the Religious Activities Committee, were the guests of Joel Leeb and Robert Lipkin on last Monday night's "Commentary" Program. The group discussed the religious

Booth Deadline

The deadline for submitting ideas for Spring Festival booths is today. All entries must be submitted to a member of WAC. A prize will be given to the organization whose booth gains the highest proceeds during the carnival.

Nine Acts Signed For Variety Show; Trophies Offered

The Inter-fraternity Council (IFC) will sponsor a variety show today at 8 p.m. in Johnston Hall, James Kritis, president of IFC, announced early this week.

Three trophies will be awarded to the first, second and third prize winners at the end of the show, Kritis added.

He stated that nine acts have signed up which will include three acts from Omicron Gamma Omega fraternity, two acts from Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, and one act each from Sigma Phi Omega fraternity, Alpha Epsilon Pi Sorority, Phi Mu Epsilon sorority and the Veterans' Association.

Judges for the show will include Gerhard Zeller, instructor of English, Robert Burcaw, assistant professor of English, and Jack Ridge, associate professor of physics.

The show will be open to all with no charge for admission, Kritis concluded.

Administrative Improvement?

The creation of three vice presidencies in the Moravian College administration is obviously a most significant event, but as far as the students of the college are concerned, it seems to be of little consequence.

The purpose of the administrative reorganization is supposedly to streamline the administrative chain of command. This it probably will do. For the past couple of years the chain appears to have had only one link—in the president. Therefore, this new system will more than likely spread the strain of administration over a wider area.

This sounds beneficial for the administration and from their side of the fence alone, it seems to be a wise move. However, on the student side of the fence, we wonder if this new system won't merely complicate the sometimes already complicated relations between these two groups.

In the past, it has often been difficult for students to know exactly where administrative power lies. This has perhaps been a direct result of the fact that the administration itself at times has been unsure. This problem has presented difficulties to both students and the administration.

If the new system functions according to plans both students and the administration should benefit. However, if it does not prove to be efficient, these student-administration relation problems will probably only increase many-fold.

The Mail Box

Classmate Scores Columnist

To the editor,

As a member of the junior class, I feel that I should reply to the columnist who wrote about class officers and elections in the April 14 issue of The Comenian.

This problem of student apathy regarding classes and class officers is definitely present; however, I feel that a few errors appeared in this column that should be corrected.

A meeting of the junior class was called, in advance, for the purpose of nominating officers. Since no specific time has been set up for class meetings as yet, the meeting had to be a "quickie" in order to allow class members to attend other meetings.

It seems that the only class members who attend the meetings are those who have interest in other organizations. The class officers should be elected by the majority of the class to represent the entire class; however, officers cannot go out and drag the negligent members to a meeting or election in order to have "total representation."

I feel that the Comenian columnist is correct in bringing this problem to the forefront. However, I would like to go one step further and suggest a possible "solution."

A nominating committee could be set up for each class. This committee's function would be to arrive at a slate of two candidates for each class office. The slate could then be brought before a class meeting for further nominations. Even if there would be no added names, an election (in the true sense of the word) could be held.

This idea would, of course, bring about a change in the constitution of the United Student Body, and therefore requires the support of two-thirds of the entire student body. I feel that this idea might possibly help the present situation of apathy toward both class officers and classes, in general.

Bittersweet

by Ronald J. Stupak

What Moravian College has been to me over the last four years has been a series of fragments, occurrences, thoughts and personalities. Thus, I would, in my closing column, like to share these thoughts with the entire student body.

What Moravian reminds me of:

A "cage" where the "rat race" for marks is as demanding as the quest for knowledge can be.

A "home" where I have found moments of pleasure, enjoyment, and accomplishment.

A "family" where I have become a part of the student body with stronger ties of friendship than at any time in my young life.

A "wife" who has helped me through college with devotion and love.

A "smiling face" which has made my coffee drinking hours pleasant, entertaining and stimulating.

A "professor" who has offered me challenges that have made me curse him, but who has brought out some of the potential that I never knew I had.

A "philosopher" who has made me question my inherited values, who has made me a critical, searching and struggling being.

A "club" which has allowed me to make acquaintances of character, tension and intellect which have added to a wider academic life.

A "spring" where I sat on a bench and talked, laughed and wished that campus life would never end.

An "athletic event" of sun, struggle, cheers, dust and victory.

A "convocation" of note taking, reading, thinking, attention, disrespect, reverence, jokes and confusion.

A "failure" because I have seen too much talent go to waste.

A "term paper" that caused me hours of pain and sweat.

An "interview" that mapped the course for my immediate future.

A "party" of friends where we sang, joked, laughed and drank in an atmosphere of belonging.

An "island" in the midst of American civilization where the element of free expression and free thought stands out like the proverbial "sore thumb."

A "jungle" where the petty power struggles of campus life are waged with such ferocity that they almost ruined a school paper, a student government, and scores of friendships.

A "library" of books, glances, whispers, silence, thought, and creation.

A "young couple" carefree and in love as they walk across the campus holding hands.

A "bus" which has provided a lifeline between North and South Campus, and a "busdriver" who has made each of these trips a pleasant one.

A "time" where I have seen many of the happiest and yet many of the most trying days in my life.

In conclusion, I would like to thank all my acquaintances, professors, enemies and administrators who have contributed to my growth in these four years at Moravian. It has been a "good" time and I only hope that others will be able to enjoy college as I have.

Peace Corps To Aid In U.S. Foreign Relations Through Work Of College Graduates Abroad

by Anne Barnes

With a change in government administration naturally comes a host of new ideas for diplomacy. The John F. Kennedy Administration has proved to be no exception. An example of this is the idea of and extensive plan for The Peace Corps now headed by Sergeant Shriver.

This program, designed to use young college graduates in their chosen fields such as government and teaching, aims at creating friendly personal relations between the people of America and those of foreign countries at "the man on the street level." Where the Peace Corps is going to find financial backing, working order, capable personnel, and a key to success has aroused keen interest.

College administrations and college students who would be involved respectively in the training and the actual execution of plans are most anxious to learn of the possibilities offered by Peace Corps proposals.

Many questions have arisen concern the proposed age, training, future, and foreign locations of the candidates. The tentative answers presented satisfy some, while causing others consternation. For instance the minimum age of eighteen makes some feel youthful responsibility is good, whereas it makes others fear youthful incompetence.

The amount of training desired has not been fully established. The opportune length of service is also still in question although a two or three year period has been suggested. The wide realm of opportunity motivates large numbers of people to seriously consider serving the government as a member of the Peace Corps.

Specific qualifications must be met for those who contemplate serving. There is required skill in a profession, first of all. One must also have a true appreciation of the mores and values in the country where he is assigned to work. He (the Peace Corps worker) must have adaptability, stamina, emotional stability, and most important a willingness to learn as well as teach. He also needs a working knowledge of democracy, a full understanding of his purpose, and last, a strong grasp of the host nation's language.

This new way to achieve the old ideal of peace has great potential as voiced by President Kennedy: "Think of the wonders skilled American personnel could work, building good will, building the peace. —There is enough know-how to help those underdeveloped nations help themselves."

The idea of world peace has not yet become trite because the olive branch still grows in the hearts of free spirits over all the world. This seed can not easily be stunted by the germ of Communism as long as new ideas of youth nurture freedom's growth.

College Creates Three Vice-Presidential Posts . . .

Snyder is a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College and has been director of development at Moravian since 1946.

Hauptert explained the thinking behind the creation of these new offices at a meeting with students last Tuesday.

He said "the purpose was to establish a more streamlined chain of command."

Hauptert added that, "this system has proven to be suitable in many other colleges."

In this chain-of-command, such offices as the dean of men, dean of women, comptroller, etc, would be responsible to the newly created office of vice-president and dean of the college, instead of to the president himself.

The same would apply to other college offices. They would be responsible to the various other vice-presidents.

The trustees, in other business, studied a projection of the needs of the college as they will be affected by the influx of students expected during the next ten years.

The trustees studied data bearing on the character and goals of Moravian College and such basic questions as long range planning.

Snyder, announced, "without taking definite action calling for expansion of the college, the board established the limit of 1200 students by 1975, as a planning figure."

Snyder added, "the proposed library would be easily adaptable to a student body of this size."

Concerning Dr. Shao's promotion; he was formally associate professor of government, and was recently named chairman of the newly created department of Political Science. Up until recently, this department functioned under the title of the department of History and Political Science.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"HE WANTS TO KNOW IF MOZART WROTE ANYTHING FOR STRING TRIO AND BONGO DRUMS."

Moravian Netmen Defeat Albright And Drew For Second And Third Victories Of Campaign

A reborn Moravian College tennis team came out victorious for the third time this season. Having previously beaten Albright 5-4, they defeated Drew 9-0 on Tuesday afternoon.

Last Saturday afternoon the Moravian six traveled to Reading, Pa., where they split singles three and three and pulled the match out in the doubles by winning two out of three.

The three winners in the singles were Bob Lipkin, Bill Grosh, and Grove Stoddard. Lipkin took two close sets 7-5, 6-4 in his match against Glen Ruoss.

Grosh went three sets against Bill Ruott 5-7, 6-4 and 6-3. Stoddard although slow at the start, squashed his man, Mike Pierce, 11-9, 6-2.

In the deciding doubles matches, Lipkin shared another victory with Merr Trumbore by defeating Bruce Bowa and Ruoss by the score of 6-4, 6-4. Stoddard also shared double honors pairing up with Dick Spaugh to beat Mike Shoulter and John Anderson 6-1, 6-2.

The Drew match, played indoors on the Johnston Hall boards, was a rout. All singles matches were won rather handily by the local netters. Only Lipkin lost a set, that a 12-14 margin to Don Anderson. Lipkin had no trouble in the other two sets, winning both by 6-2 scores.

In doubles, Spaugh and Stoddard had an especially easy time, trimming their rivals by twin 6-0 scores. Lipkin and Trumbore won in straight sets, while Grosh and Walsh were extended to three.

Ken Walsh smashes a backhand drive toward Drew opponent in opening set of Tuesday's match, played in Johnston Hall. Wet grounds prevented outdoor play. The Hounds registered a 9-0 sweep, for their third win of the young season. Photo by Stoddard

Hill's One Hitter Climaxes Twin Win Over Albright

by Ted Meixell

Brian Hill's one-hit masterpiece climaxed a clean sweep of a double header for the Moravian baseballers. On April 16, the 'Hounds bested Albright 8-7 and 2-0. The victories were well received, since earlier in the week, the win-starved 'Hounds had absorbed their third loss in as many tries at the hands of Scranton.

In the Scranton game, Jan Fritz, who had pitched well against F. & M. in relief, was charged with his first loss of the campaign. Fritz was victimized by a few lusty hits, some loose fielding, and a three hit masterpiece by Bob Matecalek, the Scranton hurler.

Barry Schollenberger replaced Fritz in the fifth and finished up. The lone Moravian tallies resulted from Sim Blahut's long triple in the third inning.

The Albright invasion began just as ominously. Schollenberger was victimized by his own wildness and left the game in the second inning on the short end of a 6-1 score. Moravian fought back gamely to go ahead with three run outbursts in each of the next two innings. The Lions made things exciting by tying the game in the seventh inning to force the game into overtime.

Ralph Mittle brought proceedings to a close with a game winning single in the ninth which scored Charlie Gilbert from second base.

In the second game, Hill, a seldom used righthander, proved himself to be a valuable man to have around. He was virtually untouchable as he fanned nine enroute to his one hit victory. The one hit was a bleeder which bounced off of Hill's foot toward second baseman Marty Garcia, who barely missed nipping the Lion runner at first.

Garcia scored what proved to be the winning run in the opening frame, when he walked, stole second, and rode home on Schollenberger's single.

Charlie Gilbert put icing on the cake by scoring Hal Rice with a single. Rice had reached base when he was nicked by a pitch. The rest of the game was all Hill, as he experienced trouble only in the sixth inning, when his control momentarily left him.

Baseballers Hit the Road To Lebanon Valley, Temple

by Gary Straughan

Tomorrow afternoon the Moravian Greyhounds travel to Lebanon Valley where they face the Dutchmen. Next Tuesday, they face the Temple Owls on the Owls home diamond.

The Temple game, as usual, will be one of the toughest games that the Hounds play during the year. The Owls, always a threat in the Southern division of the MAC's, defeated Moravian 5-2 last year on the loser's home grounds.

In last year's outing, the Hounds beat the Dutchmen, 8-4.

Both contests are must games for the Hound stickmen. Two wins will put the Hounds back into a good position in the Northern division race.

The Hounds should rely on the strong arms of Jim Gano, Barry Schollenberger, Jan Fritz, and Brian Hill, as the possible starting pitchers for the two contests.

The hitting of Schollenberger, John Bowman, and Don Vogel should prove valuable.

Hound Duffers Cop Straight Wins After Loss To Lafayette

Smarting from its first loss after a nineteen game winning streak at the hands of Lafayette, Moravian College's golf team bounced back to win three straight matches.

The three victims of the Hound linksmen have been Haverford (10-8), Upsala (13-5) and Albright (14-4).

Four Moravian golfers came through with wins in both the Upsala and the Albright matches. Jim Repasch, Dick Wilsey, Ralph Atkinson and Bob Miller were double winners. Only Atkinson surrendered any points, being nicked for one half point against Albright.

Bob Pastir, playing the "loaded" number one position was unsuccessful in both encounters even though he had Moravian's lowest score in the Albright match carding an 80.

Dick Tewel, the remaining member of the Moravian squad split even in two matches, winning against Albright while losing at Upsala.

Student Union, USG Discuss Plans For Future Of Union

idea that the organization should be separate. "The two should not be divorced," he stated, "for by taking the Student Union away from USG it will definitely weaken the Student Government." He added that USG is definitely fighting for existence and that this plan of separation would bring on certain decline for USG.

Ted Rights, a member of the Student Union Committee, refuted this by saying that the Student Union is not going to be just another building, but the hub of the campus which will unite various groups. "Therefore," he added, "there is a definite need for the separation of the two."

Rights went on to say that the USG would be important in launching the Student Union program, but from there on the Union should be self-sustaining.

In discussing the problem of financing the Student Union, it was brought out that the building would be self-sustaining and that none of the profits from the Student Union would leave the building.

Choir Travels To N.Y. For Short Excursion; Group Leaves Today

The Moravian College Choir will journey to New York City today, and return Sunday evening.

This tour is part of the Choir's program of taking a regular trip every Spring.

Choir Director Richard R. Schantz announced that the choir will sing tonight in the New Dorp Moravian Church, Staten Island, New York. Saturday the group will present a concert at the Third Moravian Church in Manhattan.

The choir will be divided into two groups for its Sunday morning appearance. One group will sing at the First Moravian Church, Manhattan, while the second group will be at the Treemont Terrace Moravian Church, in the Bronx.

The committee added that such present USG committees as the Concert-Film and Social Activities Committees would probably go under the Student Union. It was also brought out that further committees might follow suit, and therefore this would continue to weaken USG.

Joel Leeb asked the question as to who should be in charge of switching committees as well as dividing the student activities fee proportionately between USG and the Student Union. He added that he felt that USG should be given this power.

"I feel that the USG should definitely be the final buffer between the students and the Board of Trustees as to the running of the Student Union and that the final say in all matters should rest with USG," Ronald Stupak added.

A committee was formed to meet with the Student Union Committee to look into the feasibility of the two ideas. This committee, which is composed of Cordray, Jean Friedman, Leeb, Robert Dietrich, Frank Miller and Albert Applegate, will meet Thursday, April 27 in the Rau-Hassler lounge to discuss these problems.

In a short meeting of USG held prior to the dinner, Tau Sigma Lambda, a women's service fraternity, was granted admission to USG, by a vote of 9-7.

Donald Eichenhofer, Ellen Smith and Joan Crugar were appointed to the Permanent Elections Committee to fill vacancies left by students who resigned.

In further business Women's Activities Committee was granted an allocation of $25 to cover added expenses for the Spring Festival, and the Board of Publications requested an allocation of $150 to cover the cost of printing of an additional 50 Benignas. This action was tabled until the next meeting as required by the USG constitution.
