Students Urged To Enter 75th Beck Contest

The deadline to enter the 75th annual Beck Oratorical Contest to be presented at convocation on March 2 has been extended to February 15.

Cash prizes and individual plaques are awarded first, second, and third place winners. In addition, the organization represented by the first place winner is awarded a trophy to be retained for one year. The trophy becomes the permanent possession of the organization after three of its representatives have achieved first place honors.

Origin Traced

The John Beck Oratorical Contest was established as a result of a grant by the Honorable James M. Beck, LL.D., a member of the class of 1880, who at one time served as the Solicitor General of the United States and was a nationally known member of the legal profession.

Named in honor of his grandfather, John Beck, who founded and was for 50 years the Headmaster of Lititz Academy, the first contest was held on March 28, 1892 on the occasion of the 300th anniversary of the birth of John Amos Comenius, the sixteenth century Moravian educator.

Entrants Announced

Each organization is permitted an unlimited number of entries. Those entered as of the Comenian deadline are: Kriss Straume and William Farquer, Beta Lambda Chi; Richard Ditterline and Phil Sommer, Pi Mu, and Gene Clater and Donald P. Smith, Omicron Gamma Omega. The defending champion is Sigma Phi Omega, whose James McMahon emerged the victor last year.

Christian 'Utility' To Be Discussed At C.C.A. Retreat

by Nick Husak

The Rev. Clark A. Tompson will speak on "What's the Use of Being a Christian" at the Campus Christian Association retreat to be held Feb. 17, 18 and 19 at Camp Blue Mountain near Hamburg, Penna.

College Worship Speaker

The Rev. Mr. Tompson, who spoke at All-College Worship last semester, is a graduate of the University of Rochester (N.Y.). He received his M.A. from Duke University and his B.D. from Harvard University.

He is presently working for his doctoral degree at Brown University.

All students who wish to go on the retreat are to sign up at the CUB desk no later than Wednesday, Feb. 15. The cost will be $1.75 per student.

"GLAMOUR" GIRLS: Eleven girls will compete this year to represent Moravian in "Glamour" magazine's "Best-Dressed College Girl" contest.

Elections to determine the winner will be held Monday and Tuesday in the CUB. The Women's Activities Committee is sponsoring the event this year.

by Carolyn Felker

A visiting delegation of fifteen representatives from various colleges will participate in a case study of Moravian early next week.

The study has been authorized by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Commission on Institutions of Higher Education. The commission includes over 300 institutions in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, the District of Columbia, Panama, Puerto Rico, and Paris.

The new plan followed by the commission consists of a study of selected colleges believed to be well beyond minimum accreditation and study of which would prove beneficial to their colleges and universities interested in the type it represents.

10 Year Plan

Every accredited college is restudied once in ten years. Under normal procedure, the college is asked for a self-evaluation based on an elaborate questionnaire, followed by a visit of representatives from other colleges, who spend three days on campus to formulate their own evaluation.

The commission has recently reached the conclusion that for colleges well beyond minimum standards, there may be more productive means of restudy. Out of this, the case study was applied.

Not For Evaluation

The purpose of the case study is not an evaluation of the strengths and weaknesses. Rather, the questions center on the effort to discover how a given college understands its purposes and how

WHY WE'RE LATE: Tuesday's snow provided a needed respite from quite a few classes and a chance to participate in some real "cool" activities (above). It also made it difficult for many of the employees at the Globe-Times Printery to get to work and equally impossible for "Comenian" couriers to get to the BGT. All our deadlines were moved up 24 hours and the paper is a day late. Sorry about that! (Staff Photo)

M.C. Concert To Feature Renown Artist

The celebrated American pianist, Grant Johannesen, will appear in concert tonight in Johnston Hall.

This recital is part of the College Concert Series sponsored by the Moravian Concert-Film Committee of the College Union Program Board.

The series is subsidized in part with student funds and is a part of the activity program of the college which is designed for Moravian students.

Began Study At Six

Johannesen, a native of Salt Lake City, began to study piano when he was six-years-old. He won a study scholarship and began to work with Robert Casadesu, reown concert pianist, when he was 18.

He won the International Piano Competition in Ostend, Belgium and the Harriet Cohen International Award in London. He made his New York debut in 1944.

He has appeared regularly with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and played at various international music festivals.

Tours Russia

In 1963, Johannesen toured Russia where his performances were called "a tremendous success."

Tonight's concert is being presented in conjunction with the Bethlehem Community Concert series.

Students may obtain tickets free of charge by presenting their Moravian I.D. cards at the CUB desk.

Tickets must be picked up prior to the beginning of the concert.

Needed: A Better Method

Of what use is the familiar "rank in class" evaluation of college students?

Class rank is not only imprecise and academically indefensible, but use of this criterion is encouraging collegians to sidestep courses which might be more educationally beneficial to them in favor of classes where grades are likely to be higher.

Increasing numbers of Moravian students are beginning to avoid certain course offerings because of an anticipated lowering effect on their class standing.

It seems obvious that the attempt to preserve or insure a high or higher numerical rank in class is interfering with the best selection of courses.

A student's choice of courses, within the requirements for his degree, should be based only on the potential intellectual value and interest of the class.

The emphasis placed on class rank by the Selective Service system has brought this issue to the limelight. Draft-conscious students aim at maintaining the grade-point necessary to obtain a deferment, and little more.

But, there have long been inequities inherent in this system which compares the incomparable, and lets a tenth of a percentage point and choice of major curriculum determine which student is more "intelligent" than another.

Every class must have a lower quarter. Could it not be the case that emphasis on class rank encourages many potentially good students to choose less competitive and, in many instances, inadequate institutions of higher learning at which to pursue their degree.

Use of class rank places undue stress on a mechanical grading method which is, given the tremendous diversity of our nation's colleges and universities, at best, a very imprecise tool.

There must be a better way.

Letters to the Editor

... Moravian Coeds Agree

Dear Editor:

As a former Moravian dormitory resident student I find myself in agreement with your last editorial, "Why Not Moravian."

I know from experience that restricted institutional life, such as exists here at Moravian does not, in fact, prepare one for "life on the outside."

College life represents security and suppresses much of the sense of responsibility and individuality that a university is suppose to cultivate.

While a student may receive an academic education this is only a part of what is necessary for the outside working world.

A policy of no hours for 21 years (legal age) and seniors would not only be reasonable, but viewed in this way, indispensible.

Sincerely,
Kris Harberg

... Urge Reform

Dear Editor:

Last week's editorial was interesting and highly appreciated. Moreover, this brought to light an area that is of importance to all resident women.

Since curfew has been extended to 12:30 on Friday night when there are classes on Saturday, it is felt that curfew should be extended on Sunday night also. This would help in extending traveling time to those who have gone away for the weekend.

The administration is to be commended for the advances made, however much more could be accomplished. Women who are twenty-one years of age should be recognized as adults, responsible for themselves. They should not be restricted to an established curfew.

It has been suggested that each senior girl be presented with an I.D. card or pass which could be presented to the night watchman for entrance to the dorm after curfew.

Help make Moravian an institution which has the right to bear the term LIBERAL.

Sincerely,
Concerned Moravian Freshmen
Names Withheld Upon Request

... Arise, Unite, Protest

Dear Editor:

We would like to support your suggestion of no hours for senior women and/or women over 21.

In the statement of purpose of the 1966 - 67 Moravian College Handbook are these words "... Moravian seeks to promote growth in self understanding, challenge the individual to high accomplishment, and provide a wholesome and constructive social experience, so that the student may fulfill a responsible role, not only in the collegiate community itself but in the various relationships of life thereafter."

In a year or so we will be living in a world where there are no curfews. Women of 21 and 22 years will suddenly be able to stay out later than 12:30 on a Friday night.

A good time to experiment with developing this use of freedom would be while one is still in school and not quite so "on your own" as you would be when you are living as a true independent in modern society.

The Corkscrew Letters

by Robert W. Woosley, Jr.

ED. NOTE: The Rev. Robert W. Woosley, Jr. joined the Moravian academic community in 1961.

A graduate of Wake Forest College, Mr. Woosley received his B.D. and his Th.M. from Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary.

An assistant professor in both the philosophy and religion departments, he is also the college chaplain.

Chaplain
Woosley

Comment or criticism on his article is welcomed.

Despite the fact that my possession of the letter which follows will confirm suspicions concerning both my nature and my activities, I feel under some obligation of sharing it with readers of the Comenian. Like C. S. Lewis, in The Screwtape Letters, I have no intention of explaining how it fell into my hands.

Dear Darknose,

The Lowerarchy is pleased to inform you that your first assignment in the forces of our Father the Devil will be as Saboteur of the curriculum revision at Moravian College. You will not find it a difficult task; academic people generally take themselves quite seriously and are singularly unable to laugh at their own blundering.

Laughter is a direct insult to the dignity and austerity of Hell, and should you find any appreciable number at Moravian College who engage in this disgusting practice, notify the Secretariat for Gloom immediately.

In reviewing the dossier on Moravian College our Committee on Academic Fuddling made the following observations which you may find helpful in your work:

1. The Enemy has succeeded in getting a wide-spread concern among faculty personnel about what it means to be a "Christian college." These discussions should be encouraged, remembering, of course, that everything must be twisted before it can be of use to us.

Keep them engaged in the practice of self-examination without discovery — a kind of navel gazing which we've always found helpful. Be careful to divert attention from the obvious; keep them concerned with "advanced spiritual problems" rather than elementary duties.

No one should be allowed to think of the relation which has always existed in Christian tradition between worship and work; the danger in that would be a possible increase in chapel attendance. Actually, however, there is little chance of that. You will find in the Administration a powerful ally here.

Although our records are not always accurate, they indicate that the last time a member of the Administrative Staff entered Borhek Chapel was to attend memorial services for President William McKinley. We are happy to note, however, that all of them have perfect attendance at the faculty coffee hour. As long as administrators don't take chapel seriously we have nothing to fear from faculty and students; a few people have the courage to be non-conformists.

2. Academic people love to talk; in deed, that's one reason they become teachers in the first place. This can be used to great advantage provided you concentrate on jargon rather than reason. Make them think that whatever is "exciting," "involving," "meaningful," "relevant," and "imaginative" will lead to the "realization of maximum potential" if the dialogue is "constructed in depth" whether in "structured opportunities" or "informal encounters."

This process soon gives the more cynical members of the faculty chronic nausea, thus removing one of our most formidable foes. The point is to keep them talking nonsense so they never make the transition from dreamy aspiration to laborious doing.

3. Although pride is one of the seven most potent weapons of our Father, the Enemy is able to use this concept to His advantage when it comes to institutions. There have been schools with meager resources which have scored phenomenal victories for the Enemy because of the esprit de corps of its administration, faculty, students, and alumni.

The inferiority complex and apologetic attitude already firmly entrenched in Colonial Hall should be continued. Make them deeply ashamed of their relationship with the Church, and keep them asking, "Can any good thing come out of Moravian College?"

4. Do not forget the advantages of inflaming the horror of the traditional approach. The desire for novelty and the love of gimmicks are indispensable aids in curriculum sabotage. By the proper use of Fashions and Vogues we can keep teachers from their real task of providing a sound education.

All such traditional approaches to education as lectures, assignments, term papers, examinations, grades, classes, discussions, etc., should be attacked, preferably by different departments, each insisting on its way for all. By this method there is almost no chance of ever coming to any agreement satisfactory to everyone.

We shall expect regular reports of your work. "Keep the faith, Baby."

Sincerely,
Corkscrew

P.S. You have nothing to fear from the Chaplain; he is soon to be transferred.

Deans Heller, Stanley Debate Moravian Disciplinary Reforms

by Laura Haley

"Discipline on Campus" was the title of a discussion led by Deans Heller and Stanley at the February 2 meeting of the Campus Christian Association.

Dean Heller began by announcing that the subject of discipline must be approached at two foci: the community and the individual. He explained that there is tension between the two and that discipline "takes place between them."

The objective of discipline on the community level is to achieve the "maintenance and order necessary for the proper function of the community." On the individual level the goal is "rehabilitation."

"In Locus Parenti" Policy

Heller then presented two principles involved in the philosophy and function of discipline: in locus parentis and due process. In the in locus parentis principle the institution is regarded as a replacement for the parents, and its discipline role is emphasized.

Taken to the extreme, this policy can result in the "prolongation of adolescence." "However," Dean Heller pointed out, "most colleges accept this role in the beginning of a student's school career and then reject it as soon as possible to allow the transition to mature adulthood."

In the due process principle, discipline is handled on the order of a court case. But not all those rights to legal procedure in the state apply to the college community. "One joins a college community not as a right but as a privilege."

Student Freedom Discussed

Dean Heller then discussed the discipline committee. He put forth that many colleges have adopted the discipline committee to the point where the students exercise freedom in handling all discipline problems. There is only one limitation: the veto power of the administration to insure the rights and integrity of the college.

As it is organized now, the discipline committee's function is to deal out punishment. A judiciary court, whose objective would be the determination of innocence or guilt, is now in the discussion stages.

Dean Heller stated that he would like to see more involvement of students to the point of a discipline committee comprised totally of students. "Students are notoriously stiffer on each other than faculty or administration," he noted.

Church Association Unique?

Dean Stanley then presented the question, "Is there uniqueness to the discipline of this church-related institution which emphasizes its Christian association?" He held that there is not such a uniqueness and that "a discussion of discipline pre-supposes guidelines and rules."

Stanley commented favorably on the in locus parentis principle. He said "students want the best of both worlds; they want independence and freedom, but they still welcome the security and umbrella of the institution."

FOCUS

by Carol Brescher

[FOCUS Photographer — Greg Fota]

There is something very cosmopolitan about John Bariamis. He is the product of two worlds—Greece and America.

John was born in Tripolis, a city of 20,000 in the mountains of Greece. Through the generosity of Mayor and Mrs. William Scott of Bangor, Penna., he and his brother arrived in Bangor in 1963 to receive an education and a taste of the American way of life.

By coming to America, John increased his knowledge and appreciation of Greece.

"The Greeks are a very proud people, proud of their history. They think of themselves as the people who gave light to the world.

"Over there when you study history, you go all the way back to the very beginning.

"You don't really appreciate all this until you leave. I used to sit in my uncle's house in Athens and look at the Acropolis. We used to play ball around it. The history of my people was not as appreciated as much as it is appreciated today.

"I found a lot about Greece when I came to America. When I study the Greek philosophers here, I discover how they influenced the world, what they mean, what they've done.

"In Greece the teachers tell you how very important they were. But you really don't know if its just because we are all Greeks."

John found that by speaking to people in their own language is the best way to understand them. Besides English and Greek, John is proficient in French which he learned to speak at an International Camp in Belgium in 1959.

"People are alike all over the world. I'd like to think that everybody is good but I don't believe it, the reason being that very few people are truly and consistently sincere.

"One difference between Americans and Greeks is technological strength. Also, in Greece the people would like to have money, but they are not obsessed by it.

Greece is a very old country. Many people have yet to see a movie. Many marriages are still made by a "match-maker" (a woman who knows everyone in the small villages of the area).

"Dowries are still part of the match-making process. The couple receives a start by the dowry which may be anything—money, furnitures for a house, or even a house. This is part of the reason that people don't marry young."

In the cities these methods are almost obsolete. John feels that big cities are alike everywhere.

"In Athens, as in New York, you're free. You have no one to worry about and no one to watch the things you do.

John Bariamis . . . "I used to . . . look at the Acropolis."

watching. Often you wish that they wouldn't."

A firm believer in individualism, John tries to refrain from casting judgment.

"Anybody can be anything they want to be as long as they don't harm me or anyone else who doesn't want to be bothered.

"One of the easiest and gravest mistakes is making generalizations. The Greeks hate the Turks, but one of my best friends is a Turk.

"What really counts is the individual. You need a respect for the individuality of a person.

"Many beatniks are not individualistic in the true sense of the word. They are conforming in a different way."

John spent his senior year at Bangor High School, and is now in his junior year here at Moravian.

"Academically, Moravian is great. Many of the people here are great. They have the potential to do a lot more, but I guess they can't be bothered.

"The school is too small, and it is made smaller by some nosey people. Some people sit in the cafeteria and just talk about

"I came from a small town, to a smaller town. People in a small town are always interested in what you do. They're always other people. You know your name comes up. You just learn to cope with it the best way you can: by ignoring it.

"I've learned a lot here at Moravian these last three years, and not just academically. I've learned a lot about people—the American people.

"Living in America is a great experience. I am very anxious, though to return home."

And all this must end. John must return to the Greece he describes as "very rugged, very beautiful," by December 31, 1968.

. . . Request Re-evaluation

Dear Editor:

While we are not in total agreement with your editorial of last week concerning the elimination of women's hours at Moravian, we would like to suggest that some changes in the current policy are necessary.

A complete abolishment of women's hours might be an extreme move, but certainly something could be done to modernize and update the present system.

We, also, would like to see a re-evaluation of Moravian policy on "coed curfews."

WHAT'S MY NAME?: Moravian's John Pappas seems as assured of victory as Cassius Clay as he scores a near fall on his way to a 5-3 decision over Birdsall of Dickinson. Pappas' record stands at 4-1-1 so far this season. (Photo by Reber)

Grapplers Put Heat On Devils, Destroy Three Perfect Marks

by MaryAnn Cerciello

Dickinson's Red Devils found the climate too hot in Bethlehem when an angry pack of Moravian Greyhounds blasted their wrestlers, 28-3, in last Friday's home mat contest. Four of the opponents had arrived boasting undefeated records, but only one, Jim Broughal, returned to Carlisle with his tab intact.

Averting a shut out, Broughal, a Bethlehem resident, convincingly decisioned Pete DeCastro, 9-0, at 177-lb. to gain Dickinson's only points.

Moravian racked up two falls against the Devils with Dick Sanford and Bob Kresge going all the way. Sanford, a freshman, flattened Gary DePersia, previously undefeated, in 4:57 of the 145 lb. match with a body press and bar.

Senior Kresge, working toward the pin with a near fall, nabbed Bill Diefenderfer in 6:47 in 167-lb. action.

The 'Hounds began the onslaught early as Rod Apple executed a reversal in the first bout to trim Phil Jacobsen, 2-1.

Scares Devil

In the 130 lb. class Ken Haldeman of Moravian threw a scare into Allen Bell with a near fall in the final period. Haldeman won the match with a 7-1 score.

Ed Jenkins scored all the takedowns in his 135-lb. match and was always in control as he lanced Joe Hare, 7-1, and added more points to the Greyhound tally.

Exciting 'Hound captain Roger Grubbs came dramatically close to pinning his competition at 152-lb. Grubbs chalked up 3 near falls on his way to destroying Henri Rauschenback's perfect record, 13-2.

Pappas Ruins Record

Another Devil record was blemished when freshman standout John Pappas knocked Mark Birdsall out of the ranks of the undefeated. Pappas matched Birdsall's takedown, added points on a reversal and riding time to win, 5-3, at 160.

Heavyweight Dave Mucka was in complete control as he manhandled Ray Hudak of Dickinson, 8-1. Although Mucka did not pin his opponent, he had little trouble scoring 2 takedowns and a near fall against the seemingly "heavier than heavyweight" Hudak. Mucka and Grubbs remained un-

Mo Mo Blasts Wagner

In an earlier encounter at home with Wagner, the 'Hounds mauled the Seahawks, 30-3.

In the most anticipated match of the night, Mucka decisioned Bill Bergren, 4-2. The Wagner matman is a 235-pound defending New York City Metropolitan heavyweight champion.

Grubbs downed Steve Bernard in 4:40 with an arm bar and head scissors.

Mo Mo freshman Haldaman won his first varsity bout with a 6-1 verdict over Ray Mount.

Womens' Team Gets Defeated By M'Berg

by Patricia Zwald

The Houndettes fought a losing battle last Friday on the basketball court at Muhlenberg. Despite a gallant effort by the girls from Mo Mo, the Mules walked off with a victory, 42-30.

Coach Whytock definitely felt her girls were at a disadvantage playing on such an unusually small court. Muhlenberg, meeting the Houndettes on their home cage, had the edge they needed to defeat the visitors.

Early Lead

Mo Mo took an early lead only to lose it through a series of fouls and violations. The Mules, playing as rough as they could, pulled ahead in the second quarter and managed to retain the lead.

Moravian's second team also suffered a defeat at the hands of 'Berg. Coach Whytock feels her girls are good and they play a nice clean game but lack the experience the varsity has.

Last Tuesday the girls traveled to Philadelphia to meet Philadelphia College of Bible. The Houndettes showed their skill by trouncing PCB 33-16. Nancy McKinley was high scorer for Moravian with 13 points.

COMENIAN SPORTS

Off to the Slopes:

The Ski Breed

by Pat Zwald

Winter is the season of the year when that special breed of sportsmen appears at the sight of the first snowflake.

These hardy souls brave the cold winds and fight the never ending lift lines to participate in one of today's most popular sports, skiing.

Ski resorts are appearing all over the United States, even in regions where very little snow falls during the winter. Thanks to the invention of machines that enable man to make snow that will cover a slope and make it skiable, skiing enthusiasts have increased in number as much as ten times in the last five years.

The ski boom that has hit the country has not skipped over the Pocono area which is so close to Moravian. The second largest ski area that the Poconos boast is located less than an hour's drive from school.

Camelback offers the avid skier an opportunity to hit the slopes everyday and several nights a week as long as conditions are good. They have their own snow making machines which compensate for the occasional lack of the natural kind.

Instruction is a necessity for any beginning skier. Ski schools are located at all ski areas and offer expert training to the novice.

Moravian College has not been untouched by the ski epidemic. A course in ski instruction is now offered to sophomores in their regular gym classes.

Miss Christina Whytock, gym instructor, and a few students act as instructors for the classes. Many students at Moravian are quite skilled at the sport and a few are even professional instructors working at area resorts.

Skiing as a competitive sport has become more popular today than ever. The number of youngsters racing today and competing for a spot on the U.S. Olympic team has increased greatly. Racers make skiing look very easy but the beginner must remember that it takes years of practice to ski that well.

Like everything else, skiing has a language of its own. To be in with the in crowd, a novice should be able to understand what is meant by such expressions as "the fall line," "schussing," or "weldel."

Moravian has a group of beginners in the gym course that is offered. These students have begun to think that skiing is the greatest, why else would they have driven all the way to Camelback in near blizzard conditions just to hit the slopes.

Skiers are a special breed of people. They are friendly and dedicated to the advancement of the sport. They are a group which always welcomes newcomers. So if anyone is interested in fun and excitement it can always be found in the center of a ski crowd.

See you on the slopes!

'Hounds Smear Dutchmen But Fall Before Albright

by George Nicolai

Moravian coupled a full court press with Tom Bonstein's 22 point offensive to beat Lebanon Valley, 78-64 last Thursday night.

The victory, sandwiched between 'Hound losses to Scranton and Albright, captured the Moravian basketball spotlight.

The Greyhound hoopsters canned the Lebanon Valley win after dropping a 79-66 game to Scranton two days before. The team fell before Albright with a 73-57 score.

Fore, Bonstein Shine

Tom Fore's 10 points and Tom Bonstein's 10 rebounds highlighted the game against the Dutchmen. With five minutes left in the first half, eight straight points on charity tosses by Fore, a pair of goals by Charlie Osinski and one by Mick Doney put Mo Mo out in front to stay.

A full court press cooled off the LV offense throughout the rest of the game.

Osinski Scores

Pat Simpson and Jerry Stauffer led the losers with 15 tallies each. Fore's efforts and the 11 points scored by Osinski backed up Bonstein's show.

A tight man-to-man defense proved to be the downfall of the Greyhound roundballers at Albright.

Sophomore Bill Kemmerer, Moravian shooting sensation, closed the half with a one-handed bucket from midcourt to keep the Lion lead at eight points. Half-time saw Albright leading, 32-24.

Albright Dominates

Dominating the game from midway through the first half, the Lions had three men in double figure scoring columns. Team captain Bill Kudrick led the winners with 13.

Kemmerer was high scorer of the night with a 28 point record. Bonstein contributed 13 to the losing effort.

MAC Leaders

The Middle Atlantic Conference division leaders, the Scranton Royals, downed the Mo Mo team with overall court play.

Each of the five Royal starters hit in double figures. Bob McGrath led the winners with 19 and All-American candidate Rhett (Red) Jenkins was close behind with 17.

The Greyhounds also had a balanced scoring attack with supersoph Bonstein taking individual scoring honors by scoring 24 points. Kemmerer, with 16, Rich Baksa, with 14, and Fore, with 10, followed him in the scoring column.

Close Contest

The game was close until the closing three-and-a-quarter minutes of play when six straight Royal points decided the outcome.

The loss of team captain Jack Fry made the difference in the game for Moravian. Without the 6'3" senior's rebounding ability, Mo Mo lacked much under the boards. Fry is out for the season with a leg injury.

STAMP OUT YOUNG LOVE

It happens every day. A young man goes off to college, leaving his home town sweetheart with vows of eternal love, and then he finds that he has outgrown her. What, in such cases, is the honorable thing to do?

Well sir, you can do what Crunch Sigafos did.

When Crunch left his home in Cut and Shoot, Pa., to go off to a prominent midwestern university (Florida State) he said to his sweetheart, a wholesome country lass named Mildred Bovine, "My dear, though I am far away in college, I will love you always. I take a mighty oath I will never look at another girl. If I do, may my eyeballs parch and wither, may my viscera writhe like adders, may my ever-press slacks go baggy!"

Then he clutched Mildred to his bosom, flicked some hayseed from her hair, planted a final kiss upon her fragrant young skull, and went away, meaning with all his heart to be faithful.

But on the very first day of college he met a coed named Irmgard Champerty who was studded with culture like a ham with cloves. She knew verbatim the complete works of Franz Kafka, she sang solos in stereo, she wore a black leather jacket with an original Goya on the back.

Well sir, Crunch took one look and his jaw dropped and his nostrils pulsed like a bellows and his kneecaps turned to sorghum. Never had he beheld such sophistication, such intellect, such savoir faire. Not, mind you, that Crunch was a dolt. He was, to be sure, a country boy, but he had a head on his shoulders, believe you me! Take, for instance, his choice of razor blades. Crunch always shaved with Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades, and if that doesn't show good sense, I am Rex the Wonder Horse. No other blade shaves you so comfortably so often. No other blade brings you such facial felicity, such epidermal elan. Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades take the travail out of shaving, scrap the scrape, negate the nick, peel the pull, oust the ouch. Furthermore, Personnas are available both in double-edge style and in injector style. If you're smart—and I'm sure you are, or how'd you get out of high school—you'll get a pack of Personnas before another sun has set.

But I digress. Crunch, as we have seen, was instantly smitten with Irmgard Champerty. All day he followed her around campus and listened to her talk about Franz Kafka and like that, and then he went back to his dormitory and found this letter from his home town sweetheart Mildred:

Dear Crunch:

Us kids had a keen time yesterday. We went down to the pond and caught some frogs. I caught the most of anybody. Then we hitched rides on trucks and did lots of nutsy stuff like that. Well, I must close now because I got to whitewash the fence.

Your friend,
Mildred

P.S. . . . I know how to ride backwards on my skateboard.

Well sir, Crunch thought about Mildred and then he thought about Irmgard and then a great sadness fell upon him. Suddenly he knew he had outgrown young, innocent Mildred; his heart now belonged to smart, sophisticated Irmgard.

Being above all things honorable, he returned forthwith to Cut and Shoot, Pa., and looked Mildred straight in the eye and said manly, "I do not love you any more. I love another. You can hit me in the stomach all your might if you want to."

"That's okay, hey," said Mildred amiably. "I don't love you neither. I found a new boy!"

"What is his name?" asked Crunch.

"Franz Kafka," said Mildred.

"I hope you will be very happy," said Crunch and shook Mildred's hand and they have remained good friends to this day. In fact, Crunch and Irmgard often double-date with Franz and Mildred and have barrels of fun. Franz knows how to ride backwards on his skateboard one-legged.

Moravian Girl Could Become 'Miss Lehigh Valley 1968'

Applications are now being accepted for entrants for the Miss Lehigh Valley Pageant, a preliminary to the Miss America Pageant.

Any organization, school, fraternity, or business can sponsor an entrant. There is no charge to enter and a girl may enter or be entered without the sponsorship of any organization.

USG News

The USG meeting was held in the Bethlehem - Salem Room on February 6 at 7:30 p.m.

Business was postponed in order to hear an address by President Raymond Hauptert. He expressed a hope that the USG and Dean Stanley would give considerable thought to the area of student responsibilities.

The main topic of the address was a report on a Case Study group which will meet at Moravian next week to evaluate the college. This particular group is representative of the Middle Atlantic States Association. The group determines which colleges in this region, one of six regional areas in the country, will be accredited. The committee also accredits junior colleges and community colleges.

A college is evaluated and judged for accreditation. The college is re-examined once every ten years. The school prepares in advance a report on the strengths and weaknesses of the college. The committee also evaluates the school and then sends in a separate report to the commission, which takes action accordingly. If any significant change in the college's program is made, a re-evaluation of the school is made promptly.

The college is evaluated on the quality of its factors, not the quantity. The first point to determine is what the purpose of the school is. Also included is the adequacy of the college's facilities. The greatest test is the presentation of how the college is fulfilling its purpose.

A new type of evaluation, in the experimental stage, will be used at Moravian this year to re-evaluate the college. Moravian has been invited to be the host for a Case Study program, to be held on the campus February 12-15. A committee of 15 members will visit the school to see it in full operation.

Director of this program is Dr. Frank Piccor, administrator of Syracuse University. The committee will want to observe the functions of Moravian, and talk with some of the students. In this evaluation, they hope to see how the college is organized.

They are not searching for strengths and weaknesses, but for performance. Since Moravian is open to criticism, the college will benefit from any suggestions given by the group members.

Dr. Hauptert believes that students have a better opportunity for higher education than ever before. This can be a step in the right direction.

Buffet:

The Valentine's Day buffet will be held in the CUB dining room from 5-7 p.m., on Tuesday, February 14. Dress regulations will be in effect.

Movie:

"The Thrill of it All" starring Doris Day and James Garner will be presented in Prosser Auditorium on Friday, February 17, at 7 and 9:00 p.m. This slap-stick comedy pokes fun at TV commercials, Madison Avenue and the servant problem.

Oratory Contest . . .

should be of general interest to Moravian College students and suitable to a convocation audience. Speeches are limited to six minutes.

The final contest will be limited to six speakers. If there are a large number of entries, a preliminary contest will be judged by three faculty members.

Judges for the final contest will be persons other than faculty or staff members of the college and will be announced at a later date.

Entry blanks are available at the CUB desk and should be returned to the Public Information Office, Room 305, Colonial Hall.

The requirements are that she must be a resident of Lehigh, Northampton, or Carbor counties or a student attending college in one of the counties. She must be an unmarried high school graduate at least 18 but not more than 28 years of age by Labor Day, 1967. A three minute talent routine is also necessary.

Prizes include $400 for the titlist, $100 for the talent winner, special trophies, and sterling silver charm bracelets for all entrants. There will also be a $50 prize for the sponsor of the winner.

The contest will be held April 29 at Whitehall High School. Application forms can be obtained by contacting the Pageant Committee at 931 Fourth St., Fullerton, Pa. The Whitehall Exchange Club is sponsoring the event for its student loan fund. For further information contact the Pageant Chairman, Edward J. Galgon.

it operates to achieve these purposes.

The answers to these questions involve all aspects of operation including curriculum development, faculty recruitment and development, long-range planning, fund raising and basic fiscal policies.

The group studying Moravian is under the chairmanship of Dr. Frank P. Piskor, Vice President for Academic Affairs, Syracuse University.

Strengths, Weaknesses Noted

The associate director includes the preparation of an analysis of the strengths and weaknesses of the college as they become apparent throughout their visit and the submission of a confidential report to the commission, a copy of which will also be sent to the college for its reactions. The commission will then make a final decision as to aspects which should receive attention throughout the coming years.

Lafayette College, the University of Bucknell, and Washington and Jefferson College have already taken part in similar case studies. Other case studies will follow in Franklin and Marshall and Swarthmore.
