COURSE REQUIREMENTS
Students must attend all classes and bring the required text (Adams) to each class.
Three short papers and 4 quizzes
A field trip to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York (to be announced)

Grading: 45% of your grade is determined by written work; 45% by quizzes; and 10% by attendance. (Each paper is worth 15% and each quiz 15%.)

Papers ("Looking Assignments"): three papers, each 4-5 pages in length, comparing works of art. Papers are due at the beginning of class; papers handed in at the end of class or any time after will be marked down for lateness. All three papers must be completed in order to receive a grade.

Quizzes: four quizzes identifying and comparing slides of illustrations in the text. The final quiz grade is averaged from 3 of 4 quizzes (one is forgiven).

LOOKING ASSIGNMENT GUIDELINES

"You cannot say more than you see."  Henry David Thoreau

A Looking Assignment is an exercise in visual analysis, synthesis, and evaluation. It consists of three parts.
Part I: describe a work of art in one and a half to two pages (no less, no more);
Part II: describe a second work in a like number of pages; and Part III: compare/ contrast the two artworks in one page, answering a question that will be given to you in class.

Begin Parts I and II with materials (marble, oil paint, etc), size (ignore the frame or pedestal), and palette (colors). Be sure to pay close attention to the sculptor's touch or the painter's brushstroke: that is, address the physical reality of the object before you join any narrative that is represented.

Next, consider the overall composition. For example, before identifying something as a “Virgin and Child with Two Saints,” realized that first it is a “Composition with Four Figures” (and in a particular setting such as landscape or interior). Note whether the figures are full-length or cut-off, clothed or nude; make note of where the figures are placed in the composition (center or off-center). Only then go on to identify the figures and their relationship to one another, or narrative that they are enacting.
If the work is a sculpture, be sure to look at it from all sides; if an out-of-doors sculpture, be sure to take its site into consideration.

Determine what is of primary, secondary, and tertiary importance in the work as a whole, and organize your analysis accordingly. Do not, in other words, describe the work simply from left to right, nor from top to bottom. (This results in just so many randomly piled facts, like loosely strung beads.) The point of this exercise is to hone your powers of observation so that you can rapidly identify what is relevant or extraneous. Ultimately, your goal is to develop a richly structured information base of visual knowledge. You can not say everything in two pages, so make sure you identify and say the most important things, and in the order of their importance.

In Part III you are considering patterns, associations, or disconnections between the works.
Attention! Ignore the following at the peril of a markdown!
The paper should be between four to five pages in length. Papers that are too short, as well as those that are too long, will have to be rewritten to receive a grade. (Use the following as guidelines: 1) double spacing will produce a 26-line page; 2) the margin should be 1" all around; 3) use a standard font, such as Times New Roman, 10 point).

The quality of your writing is an important component of your grade. Papers that are not proofread will be marked down. Consult THE ELEMENTS OF STYLE by Strunk & White.
Titles of paintings are treated the same as titles of books (underline or italicize, but do not put in quotation marks).
Do not use the phrase "piece of art" ("piece of pie"--yes; "piece of art"--no). Instead, use the term "artwork," "work of art," or, better yet, "painting" and/ or "sculpture."
Finally, do not split an infinitive.

SAMPLE LOOKING ASSIGNMENTS from previous semesters are on reserve in the Library for you to consult. In addition, the following visual description is taken from the Museum of Modern Art’s audio tour. The picture in question is The Bather by Cezanne.

“This is a framed, vertical, rectangular picture, over four feet in height. It’s dominated by the figure of a young man. He’s wearing only a pair of white briefs and is standing alone in a bare landscape. The ground is pinkish and flat and suggests a sandy beach. It is tinged in some areas with green. In places, there appear to be shallow, bluish pools—left behind by the tide perhaps. The figure’s naked body is painted in pale pinkish flesh tones, but shadowed by the same greens, blues and violets as the sky and watery ground. . . . He seems poised to move towards us. But he’s caught in a moment of stillness in the hazy, dream-like landscape.”
