Course Description: What IS “religion”? In this course we will attempt to arrive at our own “thick descriptions” regarding the nature, meaning and phenomenon of religion(s) and religious experience in human lives. Exploring the ways religion functions in the lives of individuals as well as in the construction, maintenance and daily life of societies, our primary goal will be to think deeply and critically about the ways our own lives and our social understandings and structures are impacted by religious understandings, systems, values, practices, and searching.

Course Goals:
1) Students will gain an introductory understanding of some important methods of inquiry within the field of religious study, including sociological/historical (Smith, Wuthnow), theological/philosophical (Tillich, Rasmussen), anthropological (Eck), psychological (James).
2) Students will work to develop their own “thick description” of religion(s).
3) Students will gain insight regarding ways their own lives and understandings are shaped/impacted by religious constructions.
4) Students will improve their reading, critical thinking, imaginative, speaking and writing skills.

Course Requirements:
Attendance and preparation for alert, intelligent participation in class. Students are expected to read with a pencil in hand, making notes in the margins of the texts we read so that you don’t lose your own questions/ideas as you read. Work hard as you read to identify the main points and thread of the text’s argument, identify those same main elements in your text’s margins, and go back over your reading to make sure you have understood. This deliberate reading will prepare you for active participation in class. Bring whatever text we are reading with you to class! 25% of your overall grade will depend upon your prompt, engaged and regular attendance (the only excused absences are for family emergency, serious illness or religious observance, AND must be approved by professor BEFORE the given class). You should take notes during lectures and discussions, actively participate in discussions (plan on speaking up at least twice every class session), and demonstrate leadership in small group work. Special Note: Active liberal arts learners stretch themselves to build their skills for intelligent, thoughtful, inquisitive, critical and empathetic listening AND public speaking in the classroom – I expect every member of our class to be working at the building of these skills in every class session. If this presents any worry to you, please come see me in my office early in the semester. I can help!
Short Papers: 40% of your grade will be the cumulative grade of the short papers you will write as we complete each section of the course. More details will be given about these papers early in the semester; consult Blackboard documents for guidelines on how to write a superb paper.

Group Presentation: 15% of your total grade will be compiled from your small group presentation to the entire class near the end of the semester. These presentations will be based on the premise of Diana Eck’s book regarding the huge increase in religious plurality in the U.S. More details to follow!

Final Exam: 20% of your grade will be based on a comprehensive take-home final examination. The exam will cover all the material of the semester and will require you to write possibly two extended essays. We’ll take class time to help you organize small study groups to help each other prepare.

Students are advised to review the Academic Honesty Policy in the Student Handbook (available online) and required to follow the guidelines therein.

Important Note: Various assignments and many course resources will be posted on Blackboard. Students are advised to become familiar with this Moravian online course resource. Let me know if you need assistance. This syllabus will be posted on Blackboard, and updated with any changes we find we need to make as we progress through the semester. Please also note that your grades will be regularly posted on your Blackboard site, and you may consult them at any time during the semester if you wish to see your overall grade.
