Course Description

This course has as its central focus an examination of the research on gender differences and female gender development from a variety of perspectives. Special emphasis will be placed on critical analysis of the assumptions about human nature and science that are embedded in our approaches to these issues. The approach will be interdisciplinary, with attention to biological, cognitive, behavioral, and social factors, which influence the emergence of an individual’s gender. Topics include gender role development, achievement and motivation, women and their work, women of color, health issues, sexuality, adjustment, and victimization.

Course Requirements

Discussion Leader

Students will lead a class discussion (in small groups) on a pre-selected topic. You should present your topic in a way that is interactive with the class as a whole. The discussion leader dates and topics are detailed below. Each discussion leader will be responsible for preparing a fact sheet (with a reference list) to be distributed on the day of your discussion and a on your topic. The fact sheet should contain all of the essential information about your topic.

Since you are presenting in a group-- it is important to be well coordinated and non-overlapping. Your topic should be well defined and you should read beyond the text material as you prepare for your role as discussion leader.

Each group member will receive an individual grade for their portion of the presentation, as well as written feedback from your classmates. Your grade will also reflect the quality of your fact sheet.

Response Journal

Each student will keep a response journal during the semester. The journal should contain your responses to the weekly reading assignments as well as your thoughts and feelings about our class discussions and other aspects of the course. Your journals will be collected several times during the semester (Note: Collection dates below).

You should write three journal entries a week- two entries based upon the readings and one open entry. Date all of your entries!

When discussing the readings, consider the following: do you agree/disagree with the author's view and why, are you surprised and why, does the material contradict other material you have read, are you delighted or disgusted by what you've read and why? (Of course, these are not the only questions you might think about!) Occasionally I will provide you with a journal question to help focus your responses to the readings in a particular way.

Group Projects:

Race Against Racism: On Saturday May 12th the YWCA of Bethlehem will be holding the 1st Annual Race Against Racism. The mission of the YWCA is to empower women and eliminate racism. This group will study women and race from a variety of perspectives. Each student will select an aspect of women and racism to concentrate on. Each student will write a 5-7 page paper on their topic. The Race Against Racism group will be responsible for: selecting two readings for the class to read about women and racism, presenting your findings on women and racism to the class, and creating a list of facts and inspirational quotes to be displayed along the race route.

Sexually Transmitted Disease Education: Information regarding sexually transmitted diseases has been inadequate and ineffective. This group will review the literature on STD’s and examine the material that is typically distributed. Each student will select an aspect of STD’s to concentrate on. Each student will write a 5-7 page paper on their topic. The group will be responsible for: selecting two readings for the class to read on sexually transmitted disease education, presenting your findings to the class, and creating an alternative and effective method to convey the information.

Class Participation

Your attentive presence and prepared participation in the classroom are important both for a successful course and for your successful completion of the course. It is assumed and expected that you will attend class, complete the readings in advance of class, and come prepared to participate actively and thoughtfully in class. You will receive a class participation grade for each and every class session (excluding the session you lead). Students will help to determine their class participation grade by completing a class assessment form each session.

Evaluation

Your grade will be based on the following items;

- Discussion Leader: 10%
- Fact Sheet: 5%
- Response Journal: 40%
- Group Project: 25%
- Class Participation: 15%

100%
