Course Description
Introduces students to reader response, socio-cultural, and new Historicist lenses for making meaning of a variety of traditional and emerging texts from the amorphous body of American literature written specifically for young adults. As participants examine classic and contemporary YA texts, they construct blogs, wikis, and a literary analysis essay with hyper-textual links to articulate a philosophy for the inclusion of YA literary texts in the secondary school curriculum both individually and in tandem with canonical texts.

Essential Question(s): How has American literature for young adults evolved since the publication of S.E.
Hinton’s The Outsiders in 1967? How does applying critical lenses to your reading and using digital literacy tools to write about that reading enhance the experience of YA literature?

Objectives
1. Read and respond in meaningful ways to a wide body of texts likely to appeal to young adults.
2. Critically examine YA texts in a variety of genre through a multiplicity of lenses, including reader response, social class, gender, sexual orientation, and historical context.
3. Utilize a process approach to writing to compose an electronic reader’s notebook, a digital book review, and a digitally-based research project.
4. Adhere to a code of academic honesty within a collaborative, intellectually challenging community of fellow readers, writers, and thinkers.

Assignments and Grading [See individual rubric for each assignment’s criteria for evaluation.]
Assignments are due as indicated below. Please note that unless a mutually agreeable revised due date is negotiated with the instructor, any late assignment will lose five percentage points for each day it is late, and any assignment not submitted within two weeks of the due date will receive a “0.” It is within the instructor’s purview to apply qualitative judgment in determining grades for an assignment or for a course. Day students who wish to disclose a disability and request accommodations under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) for this course first MUST meet with either Mr. Joseph Kempfer in the Office of Learning Services or Dr. Ronald Kline in the Counseling Center. Comenius Center students who believe that they may need accommodations in this class are encouraged to contact the Dean of the Comenius Center as soon as possible to enhance the likelihood that such accommodations are implemented in a timely fashion.

1. Electronic Reader’s Notebook and In-Class Quizzes 20%
   • Entries emailed to jshosh@moravian.edu as indicated in course schedule
   • Reading check quizzes administered in class as needed

2. Mid-Term Examination 20%
   • Administered in class on 2/29

3. Digital Book Review 20%
   • Final Draft due 3/12

4. Digital Book Review Presentation, Poetry Reading, & Daily Participation 15%
   • Present digital book review to class on 3/12
   • Prepare poetry reading for YA Poetry Festival on 3/21
   • Participate fully in all class activities

5. Final Exam: Secondary Source Research Project 25%
   • Draft due 4/23
   • Final Draft no later than Final Exam Session on 5/4

Attendance
Due to the nature and structure of the course, attendance at each meeting is crucial. If you must miss a session, please call the instructor to explain. Each unexcused absence will reduce the final grade by five percentage points, and more than two unexcused class absences or a pattern of late arrivals to class may, at the discretion of the instructor, result in a failing grade for the course.

Academic Honesty
You are encouraged, and in some instances, required to use conventional and on-line secondary source materials, but all work that you submit must be your own. Be certain to cite the sources that you used, and take care to avoid plagiarism, which the Moravian College Student Handbook defines as “the use, deliberate or not, of any outside source without proper acknowledgement” (52). Consult The Bedford Researcher for more information on how to avoid plagiarism. Note that academic dishonesty will result in a zero for the assignment and notification of the Academic Dean, in accordance with Moravian College policy.

Course Schedule
Please note that while every effort will be made to follow the schedule indicated below, the syllabus is subject to change as the instructor deems necessary to help students meet the objectives of the course.

Assignment: Answer each prompt as assigned on the syllabus in a typed and e-mailed response of approximately 500 words. Use Microsoft Word, and send your response as an attachment to your email. Think about how the reading you are assigned relates to the question posed. Be certain to cite and document specific examples from the text(s) when composing your response. Also bring a hard (or electronic) copy of your response to class on the day the assignment is due. In most instances, the reader’s notebook is intended to help you think about topics that will be discussed in class. In some cases, you will actually be drafting text that you may wish to copy, paste, and/or revise as you utilize a process approach to writing to compose the major papers required in the course. Note that late entries will not be accepted. Entries are due as follows:

Entry #1 (Due 1/18): How does Eagleton define literature? If Terry Eagleton were a guest along with Carol Jago and Patty Campbell on a talk show episode devoted to YA literature, what point would each want to be certain to make? If you were also an invited guest on the show, what would you add from your own past experience as a teen reader?

Entry #2 (Due 1/23): Using one of the questioning frameworks Bucher and Hinton provide in chapter 2, briefly evaluate the plot, character, setting, theme, point of view, or style & tone of the novel, as assigned.

Entry #3 (Due 1/25): How does Wikipedia define young adult literature? How do Bucher & Hinton define literature-based instruction? What else do you learn by visiting the official web site of the Assembly for Literature on Adolescents? What web chats, blogs, or other on-line resources do you find valuable to the study of YA literature?

Entry #4 (Due 1/30): Apply the criteria Bucher and Hinton present for considering young adult literature: drama (p. 304) to Paul Zindel’s play.

Entry #5 (Due 2/1): What factors surrounding your reading of The Chocolate War influence your response to the novel? More specifically, what personal qualities or events relevant to this particular book influence your response? What textual features influence your response?

Entry #6 (Due 2/6): What makes Brian heroic? How does Paulsen use deus ex machina to resolve the plot of the novel? What alternative endings might Paulsen have considered?

Entry #7 (Due 2/8): Which poems do you find most powerful? What about the formal features of the text, the context in which the text was written, and/or your experience in relation to the text make each of your favorites resonate with you?

Entry #8 (Due 2/13): What makes the on-line book review you selected worth reading, watching or listening to? What revisions might make it more effective?

Entry #9 (Due 2/15): What is the Rashomon effect? How does this concept apply to Avi’s novel? What makes Nothing But the Truth an epistolary novel? If you were preparing a digital book review for this novel, what images might you include? Why?

Entry #10 (Due 2/20): Select a tentative genre for your digital book review, including but not limited to, movie trailer, slide show, talking head, talk show, web site, desktop published critique, or hypertext document. Begin your storyboarding or story mapping process.

Entry #11 (Due 2/22): How is The House on Mango Street a bildungsroman? OR How might you encapsulate Esperanza’s year visually in a sketch, poem, or collage?

Entry #12 (Due 2/27): How does Appleman’s argument affect your reading of The Giver? When do you believe readers are “ready” to read with a Marxist lens?
Entry #13 (Due 3/14): Apply the criteria Bucher and Hinton present for considering young adult literature: contemporary realistic fiction (p. 137) to Speak.

Entry #14 (Due 3/19): In what ways was your own adolescence similar to and different from what Walter Dean Meyers experienced growing up in Harlem? If you were to write a feminist critique of the memoir, what might you talk about? What about a Marxist critique?

Entry #15 (Due 3/26): Apply the tenets of post cyberpunk literature espoused in the essay to your reading of Feed.

Entry #16 (Due 3/28): Brainstorm three possible topics for your final research project. For each, include an essential question and a brief overview of the type of research you envision doing to answer that question.

Entry #17 (Due 4/2): What’s funny about Sherman Alexie’s novel? How does a post-colonial lens deepen your reading?

Entry #19 (Due 4/11): What does Reardon mean by “a secret edge”? What argument does Jenkins make in her research paper?

Entry #20 (Due 4/16): How does Mayer’s presentation of historical fact differ from the presentation you’d expect to see in a history textbook? What choices does he make as a writer to help his readers think historically?

Entry #21 (Due 4/18): Apply the criteria Bucher and Hinton present for considering young adult literature: graphic novels (p. 331) to American Born Chinese.

Entry #22 (Due 4/27): What is censorship and how does it differ from the selection of materials for a school curriculum or library? Which of the books we read this semester would be 1) least likely to appear in your high school’s curriculum? 2) least likely to appear in your town’s public library? 3) most susceptible to a challenge?

Suggested Response Format: Because you may want to incorporate portions of some of your responses into later drafts, it is required that you compose your entries in a word processor and save them for future access. The default font is Times or Times New Roman, 12 point and must be submitted with consistent file names formatted LASTNAME NB##.DOCX. While every attempt should be made to respond with attention to fluency, clarity, and correctness, the electronic reader’s notebook should be a venue in which you may play with new ideas and try out new rhetorical strategies.

Criteria for Evaluation: The average of thee graded entries and in-class quizzes will constitute 20% of the course grade. Reader’s notebook entries will be evaluated according to the criteria below:

1. Entry responds thoroughly and thoughtfully to the assigned prompt.
2. Entry shares specific details from assigned readings and/or from personal experience, as appropriate.
3. Entry uses literary terminology and applies theoretical lenses, as appropriate.
4. Entry is fluent, clear, and attempts to follow the conventions of so-called standard written English.
5. Entry is word-processed, double-spaced, and duly spell-checked.
Assignment: Select a classic or contemporary work of young adult literature not included on the current syllabus. Analyze the work and its effectiveness according to criteria for the evaluation of literature discussed in class and presented in Bucher and Hinton’s text. Follow the stages of the book review writing process presented by YA author Rodman Philbrick at http://teacher.scholastic.com/writewit/bookrev/index.htm. As you’re jotting down notes about what makes the book effective (or not), select an on-line book review and identify what makes it worth reading, watching or listening to. Think about what specific details the author included that made it effective or failed to include that may have made it more powerful. Select a tentative genre for the public presentation of your digital book review, including but not limited to, movie trailer, slide show, talking head, talk show, web site, desktop published critique, podcast, or hypertext document. Begin your storyboarding or story mapping process. After preparing a draft of your text, elicit feedback from your classmates. Finally, use Ohler’s suggestions to prepare your final digital book review.

Suggested Response Format: Draft of text should be approximately 5 double-spaced, word-processed pages in Times or Times New Roman Font. Final draft must be presented in an electronic format submitted on CD or DVD. Be certain to include a separate copy of the book review text as a Microsoft Word file on the disk as well.

Criteria for Evaluation: The theatre critique will be worth 20% of the final course grade and will be evaluated according to the criteria listed below:

1. Book review establishes a clear thesis and offers specific examples to show how the YA text succeed or did not succeed at doing what it set out to achieve.

2. Book review adopts an effective organizational structure, with an attention-getting lead, well-organized body, and strong conclusion.

3. Book review uses literary terminology and applies theoretical lenses, as appropriate.

4. Book review is fluent, clear, and attempts to follow the conventions of so-called standard written English.

5. Book review uses electronic media effectively to share critique with a contemporary audience.
Secondary Source Research Project Assignment Sheet

Assignment: Select a topic and develop a research question that you will address in a thesis-driven paper of seven to ten pages, exclusive of references. Submit a final project by 7:30 a.m. on Friday, May 4th in academic, desktop published, or other approved electronic format. After identifying and having your essential question approved, prepare an annotated bibliography containing a minimum of one primary and five secondary sources. Organize and synthesize your secondary source material effectively in support of a clearly defined thesis statement. Be sure to refer to the MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers, 7th edition, as needed.

Response Format: 7-10 double-spaced, word-processed pages in Times or Times New Roman Font (prior to desktop or electronic publishing) with an additional roster of no fewer than six cited works

Criteria for Evaluation: The research report will be worth 25% of the final course grade and will be evaluated according to the criteria listed below:

1. Research report presents a clear thesis and offers well-researched specific examples that clearly support the development of that thesis.

2. Research report adopts an effective organizational structure, with an attention-getting introduction, well-organized body paragraphs, and strong conclusion.

3. Writing is fluent, clear, and attempts to follow the conventions of so-called standard written English.

4. Research report uses literary terminology and applies theoretical lenses, as appropriate.

5. Research report is word-processed or electronically published, duly spell-checked, and references appropriate secondary source material according to MLA documentation style.
Plan to do more reading and writing in this course than you have done for any single course in your college career to date. You’ll likely find most of the reading to be quite enjoyable (at least the YA texts themselves—if not the supporting theoretical frameworks), but you’ll need to develop a schedule that allows you to keep up with and even get ahead of the assigned due dates. Listed below are the major YA works themselves, the secondary texts that will inform our reading, the course assignments, and the due dates. Note that an academic article or a reading from the Bucher & Hinton text must be read carefully in conjunction with the primary text.
